House-Senate Compromise Needed For 3 Programs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The legally penniless foreign aid, defense and antipoverty programs were kept in limbo Tuesday night when the House rejected a Senate continuing resolution for them and insisted on a House-Senate compromise conference.

House leaders tried to accept the Senate resolution to extend temporary spending authority until Dec. 1 to put the programs legally back into business immediately. But this required unanimous consent and two House members refused to go along.

The House finally decided by voice vote to send the Senate Dec. 1 date into a House-Senate conference with the original House resolution to continue the programs until the end of this year's session of Congress.

Spending authority for defense, foreign aid, antipoverty and the District of Columbia legally expired at midnight Monday and the Senate approved the Dec. 1 extension Tuesday afternoon.

Thus far there has been no appreciable effect on the operations of the affected agencies where employes are continuing to work on the assumption that Congress will work out something in the near future.

The impasse began building more than two weeks ago when the Senate defeated the foreign-aid bill.

House Appropriations Chairman George H. Mahon, D-Texas asked the House for unanimous consent to accept the Senate version and immediately put the agencies back into business, but Rep. Durward G. Hall, R-Mo. objected.

Mahon then asked for unanimous consent for a House-Senate conference and Rep. Wayne L. Hays, D-Ohio, objected on grounds some of the money would go to the United Nations which he said earlier in the day had censured the U.S. Congress for mandating renewed imports of chrome from Rhodesia.

Mahon finally demanded a vote on sending the bill to conference and the House

Railroad Signalmen Reach Agreement; May Strain Pay Board's Wage Guidelines

SENIOR CITIZENS MEET IN SHEFFIELD

More than 115 senior citizens and guests gathered Tuesday evening on the lower level of the Sheffield Area Medical Center to mark the official beginning of Senior Citizen activities in the Sheffield community center specially designed for their use. Guido DiLoreto, center, specialist for the aged in the Pennsylvania Department of Welfare, was guest speaker. He spoke on federal funding for senior citizen facilities and the problems of the aging. WASHINGTON (AP) — The railroad signalmen's union Tuesday announced tentative agreement on a new 42-month labor contract that could strain the Pay Board's post-freeze wage guidelines.

The board, meanwhile, met intermittently for nearly seven hours but adjourned until Wednesday without issuing any new policy directives.

A spokesman said the board discussed "methods of implementing its policies pertaining to retroactive pay increases."

The big question—which apparently remains unanswered—is whether teachers and others can collect retroactively the contracted pay increases which were blocked by the 90-day wage-price freeze which ended Sunday.

Terms of the rail agreement were kept secret pending a ratification meeting next Saturday in Chicago. However, the pattern for previous settlements by other rail unions has been 42-month contracts with 42 per cent wage increases.

This is 12 per cent a year, more than double the 5.5 per cent standard set by President Nixon's Pay Board. But the board has left itself leeway to approve higher increases after considering "ongoing collective bargaining and pay practices, and the equitable position of the employes involved..."

Charles J. Chamberlain, president of the AFL-CIO Brotherhood of Railroad Signalmen, said he intends to consult with the Pay Board about the contract. Pay Board Chairman George Boldt refused to comment on the agreement.

In other developments:

The Price Commission issued some supplementary regulations for publication which require retailers and wholesalers with $100 million or more in yearly sales to file information concerning their customary markups before raising prices.

—The Federal Reserve Board reported that the output of the nation's factories increased only 0.2 per cent last month, showing continuing softness in the economy despite President Nixon's prediction of a strong final quarter this year.

—The Senate Banking Committee, considering the administration's request to extend Nixon's authority to control the economy past next April 30, approved a provision exempting all persons at or below the poverty level from wage controls. That would apply to all families of four with incomes in the $3,900 range. The Cost of Living Council already has exempted those persons earning less than the federal minimum wage of $1.60 an hour.

The Banking Committee rejected a proposed amendment to exempt all news media from wage and price controls, and put off any decisions on extending Nixon's authority or requiring retroactive payment of pay raises lost during the freeze.

—The Cost of Living Council, Price Commission and Pay Board issued question-and-answer sheets that restated previous rulings in different language.

—The Federal Power Commission announced it will review natural gas and electric utility rates, but did not indicate what its future guidelines might be.

—Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, in remarks prepared for the Economic Club of New York, predicted that despite some initial uncertainties about post-freeze controls they will cut inflation roughly in half by the end of next year.

Boldt answered a few questions from newsmen during the Pay Board's lunch break.

He said the board had not considered an agreement reached late Saturday in the soft-coal industry. Some miners have refused to return to work until the board approves the agreement.

The three-year agreement calls for pay raises of up to 35 per cent and a 100 per cent increase in management's contribution to the union pension fund.

These are in excess of the board's general guidelines for contracts going into effect at 12:01 a.m. last Sunday and after. However, the union says the

Industrial Production Shows Slight Gain

WASHINGTON (AP) — Industrial production showed only a slight gain in October, reflecting continuing softness in the nation's economy, the Federal Reserve Board reported Tuesday.

The board said output of the nation's factories, mines and utilities climbed by two-tenths of one per cent in October, down from the September gain of eight-tenths of one per cent.

President Nixon has said that the last three months of 1971 will show a strong gain in the economy, but Tuesday's report of the Federal Reserve indicated considerable slack still exists in production.

The board said last month's gains were "fairly widespread among major industries "but were offset by a decline in coal production because of strikes. However, coal production makes up only a small part of the index.

Meantime, the Commerce Department reported that privately owned housing starts reached a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 2.050 million units in October, up from the September rate of 1.948 million units.

The housing report continued to reflect the Nixon administration's push to make housing the strongest sector of the economy. The October rate was five per cent higher than September and about 30 per cent higher than the rate recorded a year ago.

Social Security Revision May Bring Election-Year Bonanza

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is considering a proposed revision in the Social Security accounting system which could bring an election-year bonanza to taxpayers as well as pensioners.

This was disclosed Tuesday by Elliot Richardson, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, who told newsmen at the White House: "We think the recommendation is sound and does make sense."

Basically the proposal would place the Social Security system on a pay-as-you-go basis and require the trust fund to carry only a one-year reserve.

By switching to this less-conservative actuarial accounting system, officials said sharp hikes in payroll tax rates could be postponed for decades, and money could become available to increase monthly payments to the estimated 26 million Social Security beneficiaries.

A Social Security administration spokesman said if the change were implemented it would cut the tax take by $19 billion in the first year.

The spokesman said the trust fund currently has assets of about $40 billion and under the present system would reach $200 billion in assets within 15 years.

The Social Security system now pays out about $40 billion a year in retirement benefits.

The change, which would require congressional approval, was recommended last spring by a 15-member advisory council which studies the Social Security system every four years.

Richardson, who was at the White House to meet with President Nixon and other members of the President's Committee on Mental Retardation said HEW has reviewed the proposal and

Britain Reviews Way Terrorists Are Detained

LONDON (AP) — The British government has ordered a review of the way suspected Irish terrorists are detained and questioned after an inquiry commission found some evidence of physical ill treatment in Northern Ireland.

The commission, in a 72-page report to Parliament Tuesday, cleared British troops and security police in Northern Ireland of charges that they had tortured and brainwashed captured gunmen from the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

But it upheld charges from released prisoners that during interrogations they were forced to stand spread-eagled against walls for four to six hours at a time, that their heads had been covered with black hoods, that they had been subjected to loud hissing noises, denied sleep and put on bread-and-water diets.

The commission described these measures as "ill treatment or hardship," but said they fell short of "physical brutality."

Spokesmen for the IRA in Dublin and civil rights groups in the Northern Ireland capital of Belfast denounced the commission's findings as a whitewash.

Home Secretary Reginald Maudling, the British Cabinet minister responsible for Northern Ireland, announced that the government would review interrogation methods, implying that the ground rules could be changed.

An emergency debate on the subject was scheduled for Wednesday.

The commission, headed by Sir Edmund Compton, the ombudsman named to investigate charges of maladministration in Northern Ireland, looked into the treatment of 40 of the 342 suspected Irish terrorists arrested by the British army Aug. 9 and held without trial.

Since then the total of suspected IRA terrorists arrested has risen to about 900, and charges in the press of brutal detention methods have swelled demands for a fuller government review.

It is a ticklish problem for the British government. The IRA is committed to driving the British out of Northern Ireland. Its two-year campaign of shootings, bombings and arson have taken 158 lives.

British security forces defend tough interrogation methods on grounds that they are seeking information that will save the lives of civilians and troops.

"Very difficult issues are involved in judging what methods of interrogation are permissible in the protection of the lives of the civilian population and the security forces against a ruthless and deliberate campaign of terror and terror and murder," Maudling told the House of Commons.

"When combatting a terrorist campaign, time is of the essence. Information must be sought while it is still fresh so that it may be used as quickly as possible to effect the capture of persons, arms and explosives, and thereby save the lives of members of the security forces and of the civil population."

Senate Approves 15% Surcharge On Imports

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted 53 to 29 Tuesday to grant President Nixon authority to impose a 15 per cent surcharge on imports into the United States, in place of the present 10 per cent levy.

It voted in the same action to grant Nixon authority to impose quotas on any products coming into this country.

It did this by defeating an amendment of Sens. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., and Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., to strike from the $23.9-billion tax-reduction bill a Finance Committee provision granting the new powers.

Sen. Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah, said the administration had not sought the provision and had no present intention of using it but wanted it retained in the bill.

The powers could be invoked when the President finds a serious international balance-of-payments emergency exists.

Cranston and Javits argued that the Senate should have learned not to grant such broad powers to a President from their experience with the Vietnam war.

The Californian called it "an economic Tonkin Gulf resolution" which "could lead not only to a trade war but to a shooting war."

However, Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., the Finance chairman, said the United States is running a $23-billion international balance-of-payments deficit and that soft trade policies have put it in danger of becoming "an international bankrupt."

Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee said the United States should blame its own stupidity for its economic situation. Unwise policies such as the decisions to maintain military b ses all around the world have contributed, he said.

The Senate did accept, 51 to 29, a Fulbright amendment reducing from five to three years the duration of the presidential powers.

It adopted also by voice vote a Fulbright amendment cutting from three to two years the maximum effective time for any actions taken by the president under the provision.

The Senate earlier voted 46-43 to uphold the Finance Committee on a provision allocating $350 million from general revenues to the Highway Trust Fund.

The committee took the action in order to reimburse the fund for an equivalent amount lost through repeal of the 10 per cent excise tax on light trucks included in the bill.

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., and Lowell P. Weicker, Jr., R-Conn., argued the Highway Fund has a surplus and that the money should be spent for such purposes as mass transit.

U.S. Helicopter Gunships Try Vainly To Break Enemy Grip On Outpost Town

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — U.S. helicopter gunships from South Vietnam strafed and rocketed North Vietnamese positions less than 10 miles southwest of the Cambodian capital Tuesday in a vain bid to break the enemy grip on an outpost town, informants reported.

Persons returning from close to the battlefront said troops of the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong 1st Division seized the village of Tuol Leap.

Sources said at least 20 truckloads of Cambodian troops were rushed from Phnom Penh to the battle zone. Military observers in the capital felt a major battle might be brewing on the city's outskirts.

Qualified military sources reported the enemy 1st Division's two regiments have shifted their base of operation northward from heavily wooded hills around Srang, 30 miles southwest of Phnom Penh, to a region close to the city.

From there they can launch attacks against both Highway 4 and Highway 5. The first is the vital highway to the sea. The latter is Cambodia's "rice road" from the rich agricultural province of Battambang.

Highway 5, which has seen relatively little fighting in the last 18 months, has been cut in the past week in at least three places by enemy forces who blew up bridges.

The high command spokesman, Capt. Chhang Song, said the enemy struck at Highway 5 inside Battambang Province on Sunday, blowing up a stretch of road close to the provincial border with Pursat Province.

The spokesman said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong had cut Highway 3 at a point 47 miles south of the capital and three miles north of the district town of Angtassom.

Angtassom's garrison, backed by air strikes, beat back an enemy attack early Tuesday morning.

In Saigon, the U.S. Command said an American fighter-bomber attacked an antiaircraft battery Tuesday 70 miles inside North Vietnam after it came under enemy fire. It reported at least one antiaircraft gun was damaged.

The command said an Air Force F4 bombing the Ho Chi Minh Trail came under fire from an antiaircraft battery near the Mu Gia Pass, 70 miles north of the demilitarized zone separating the Vietnams. It was the 76th U.S. strike in North Vietnam this year.

It also was announced that the U.S. Air Force, which three years ago had six tactical fighter-bomber wings in Vietnam, now has only one with the withdrawal of the 12th Tactical Wing.

American F4 jets, the supersonic workhorses of the air war, now rarely fly more than a dozen strikes a day in Vietnam. The South Vietnamese usually report flying more than 10 times that many, although with lesser aircraft.

Vietnamese forces now are operating the centers that coordinate close air support for all four military regions of South Vietnam.

Three wings of the U.S. tactical jets with about 50 planes each remain based in Thailand and scores more are aboard U.S. carriers in the Gulf of Tonkin. All of South Vietnam is within their combat reach.

The stand-down of the 12th Tactical Wing was announced after its squadrons had left the country. That leaves three squadrons of the 366th Tactical Fighter Wing based at Da Nang as the only F4 Phantom units in Vietnam.

Tropical Storm Laura Stalls South Of Cuba

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Tropical Storm Laura stalled south of the Cuban coast Tuesday, apparently went into a tight loop and moved back to the southwest while her peak wind velocity dropped to 50 to 60 miles an hour.

The storm had stood for a time 100 miles southwest of Havana, sending gale winds ashore that knocked out communications in parts of the westernmost Cuban province of Pinar del Rio.

Later, radar information from Havana, confirmed by satellite, showed that Laura had moved to 130 miles southwest of the Cuban capital. This also is about 230 miles southwest of Key West, Fla.

The National Hurricane Center at Miami said maximum winds reported by Cuban weather stations were 60 m.p.h. in Pinar del Rio. Havana radio said little information had come from the province because communications had been lost.

Gale warning flags still were displayed at Key West and the Hurricane Center said they would not come down "until a definite course of the storm is established."

Havana radio said there had been "intense rainfall and heavy seas from the Zapata Peninsula to Cape Antonio."

More than 10,500 persons were evacuated from homes in the coastal lowlands of Pinar del Rio and civil defense forces and army personnel were prepared for similar evacuation measures if necessary in Havana Province.

The storm stalled in midmorning 100 miles southwest of Key West. The Hurricane Center said at the time it was expected to begin a slow, erratic drift later, probably toward the northeast at a forward speed of no more than five miles an hour.

We want to wipe out cancer in your lifetime.

Can you ever read these notices without a pang? There, you think, goes someone's husband and father. Someone's friend and associate. There, but for the grace of God, go I.

And besides the enormous human tragedy, there is the huge cost to business. Over 90% of cancer deaths occur after 40. That's when most people in business and the professions reach the peak of their careers.

At the American Cancer Society we're working feverishly to change all that. We're close to some very exciting developments. One is a routine blood test which, if it's proven effective, will save thousands of people from cancer of the colon and rectum. And colon-rectum cancer is the second biggest cancer killer, right after lung cancer.

We're so close. It could be your firm's contribution that will put us over the top.

We're making progress in dozens of other research areas, too, and they all cost money. So be generous. We want to wipe out cancer in your lifetime.

Col. Abel, Red Spy, Dies Of "Grave Illness" Tass Says

MOSCOW (AP) — Col. Rudolf Abel, top Kremlin spy who for nine years directed a network of Soviet agents from his artist's studio in Brooklyn, has died of a "grave illness," the Soviet news agency Tass said Tuesday night.

Reliable sources said the 68-year-old Abel died Monday after a six-month battle with lung cancer.

Abel, probably the most important spy ever caught in the United States, was descirbed by Tass as "the famous Soviet intelligence man" who held the Order of Lenin and six other Communist awards.

He operated from 1948 until 1957, when he was betrayed by an assistant, arrested and sentenced to 30 years in prison. In 1962, he was exchanged for U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers.

Tass said that an obituary published in the Army newspaper Krasnaya Zvezda described him as working to his last days in "educating the younger generation of Soviet intelligence men, handing them all his rich experience."

He had a mild manner, sharp nose and penetrating eyes. He arrived in the United States from Canada with false identity papers and quietly went about setting himself up as a photographer and artist in Brooklyn.

At the same time he was assembling a network of reliable agents to supply him with U.S. military secrets.

His studio was a cluttered $35-a-month room where neighbors knew him as an aspiring artist who earned his living taking pictures and dabbling in radio repair. Abel went by the name of Emil R. Goldfus.

Although he did turn out some oil paintings, his photographic equipment was used mainly to microfilm defense data. He used such objects as hollowed-out coins, pencils, nails and cufflinks in which to hide the film.

Located just across the street from the federal courthouse where he was tried in 1957, Abel received radioed messages from Moscow on his shortwave equipment and communicated with his subordinate agents through a complex system of codes, couriers and secret drops.

In 1962, when his 30-year prison term was still young, Abel was exchanged for Francis Gary Powers, the American pilot whose U2 spy plane was shot down by the Russians May 1, 1960 over Sverdlovsk in western Siberia.

The incident wrecked a 1960 Paris summit conference involving President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev of the Soviet Union, Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain and President Charles de Gaulle of France.

Powers was convicted of espionage in Moscow and sentenced to 10 years in prison. The swap was negotiated and the men were exchanged Feb. 10, 1962 on a bridge between East and West Berlin.

Abel lived in obscurity after his return to Moscow and reportedly worked as a propagandist and recruiter for the Soviet secret police, with spare time for playing Bach on the lute and classical guitar.

In 1966, the retired master spy told his story to a Soviet magazine.

"Intelligence work is not a series of rip-roaring adventures, a string of tricks or an entertaining trip abroad," Abel wrote. "It is, above all, arduous, painstaking work which calls for an intense effort, perseverance, stamina, fortitude, will power, serious knowledge and great mastery."

Civil Rights Group Takes Administration To Task

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has failed to take a firm and continuing interest in the enforcement of civil rights laws, the Civil Rights Commission said in a report released Tuesday.

In addition, the commission said, only a few federal agencies have made any real effort to upgrade the hiring or promotion of blacks, Indians, orientals or Spanish-speaking Americans.

A bulky 217-page report entitled, "The Federal Civil Rights Enforcement Effort: One Year Later" concluded:

"Unless the bureaucracy is given to understand that civil rights is a matter of personal concern to the President, it is unlikely to alter the status quo."

At the White House, deputy press secretary Gerald L. Warren said the White House had no comment on the report.

At a news conference after the report was issued, the Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, chairman of the commission, read a statement of the commission saying: "Those who keep pinning the blame entirely on the President tend to forget the wide discretion that federal officials have in performing their duties. Always to point accusingly at the President permits many of these career and politically appointed officials a false excuse for inaction."

Asked to justify the language in the report with that in the statement, Hesburgh said, "The report says what it says and we stand on what it says."

The commission cited remarks on various civil rights issues by President Nixon over the past several months as doing little to provide optimism for minorities. The President has opposed enforced busing to achieve integration and has said he is against an active federal role in the courts to integrate the suburbs.

"The net effect of the President's statements has not been to provide a clear policy direction necessary to encourage the federal bureaucracy to step up its efforts to enforce civil rights laws," the report said.

"Chief among the inadequacies is the failure to develop and to communicate to the public a sense of urgency over the need to end discrimination.

"The President's posture, as gleaned from his statements and other actions over the last six months has not been such as to provide the clear affirmative policy direction necessary to assure that the full weight of the federal government will be behind the fight to secure equal rights for all minorities."

While acknowledging that a presidential statement on housing emphasized the need to correct past patterns of discrimination, the commission criticized a distinction Nixon made between segregation resulting from income and segregation resulting from deliberate discrimination.

Truck Driver Said Innocent Of Hijacking

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 51-year-old former truck driver was found innocent by reason of insanity Tuesday after a oneday trial on charges growing out of the hijacking of an airliner.

Arthur G. Barkley Sr., a former bakery truck driver from Phoenix, Ariz., was accused of kidnaping and shooting a TWA airline pilot and stealing $100,000 from the airline. He pleaded innocent and went on trial in Fairfax County, Va. Circuit Court Monday after resisting efforts of his attorneys to enter a plea of not guilty by reason of insanity.

TWA Capt. Dale Hupe testified that shortly after taking off from Phoenix on June 4, 1970, Barkley appeared in the cockpit with a pistol, a straightedge razor and a can of gasoline.

Hupe said Barkley gave him messages for various officials which indicated Barkley felt he had been wronged by the FBI and the Internal Revenue Service and wanted $100 million in damages.

On landing at Dulles Airport here, Hupe said, a bag of money was delivered to the plane and Barkley became "very agitated...very angry" when he found it contained only $100,000.

Hupe testified he was shot in the stomach when he tried to jump Barkley as FBI agents boarded the plane.

The captain said he didn't think Barkley was "rational at all points" and added that "I thought we had a man on board who was set for self destruction."

Circuit Judge Barnard F. Jennings ruled that Barkley committed the acts charged but did not know right from wrong at the time.

Jennings ordered Barkley committed to Southwestern State Hospital for observation by three court-appointed psychiatrists. A report will be made within six months on his mental condition and whether he is a menace to the public.

No one was injured Tuesday morning in a two-car accident at the corner of Fifth ave. west and Liberty st.

According to a report filed by investigating officers Thomas A. Rosenquist and Edward J. Lindberg of the Borough Police Department, a car driven by Dolores J. Kerner, 34, of Mason's Mobile City was traveling south on Liberty and attempting to turn left onto Fifth ave. west when it was struck by a vehicle driven by Rodney M. Zinger, 17, of 41 Fuller ave. Zinger was traveling east on Fifth ave. west.

Damage to the Kerner car came to $200 and damage to Zinger's vehicle was estimated at $75.

Mrs. Gandhi Says Crisis Nearly Over

NEW DELHI (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi declared Tuesday that the East Pakistan crisis, which has brought India and Pakistan to the brink of war, would be solved within two months, a government spokesman reported.

She did not say whether the solution would come peacefully or militarily.

The prime minister, making her second major statement on the crisis in two days, briefed the 40-member executive body of her Congress Parliamentary party.

The statement raised speculation whether Mrs. Gandhi had been given an assurance during her recent six-nation trip that President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan of Pakistan would make peace with the Bengalis of his eastern province or whether she had concluded that India must impose its own military solution.

Yahya has shown no sign of agreeing to India's demand that he should let the Awami League led by Sheik Mujibur Rahman determine the fate of East Pakistan. Such a move would likely mean an independent or virtually autonomous Bengali state.

The Awami League won the parliamentary elecions in East Pakistan, but these were voided by Yahya because the league wanted autonomy or independence. Rahman is under arrest.

Two Arrested For Selling Children

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Two Oklahoma men, one of them a Boy Scout leader, were arrested in Jacksonville Tuesday night after police said they sold two children to an undercover agent for $7,000 and a used car.

Offcers said William O'Hara, also known as Milford Bennett, 37, and Robert Westenhaver, 22, were held without bond in the Duval County Jail on a charge of attempting to sell a 2-year-old boy and a 3-year-old girl to a Jacksonville couple.

Officers said O'Hara, who carried cards identifying him as the leader of Boy Scout Troop 185 in Oklahoma City, and Westenhaver contacted the couple several weeks ago and offered to sell the children.

The couple cooperated with police and a court-authorized telephone tap was used to locate the men when they drove to Jacksonville yesterday.

Detective W. E. Beecham said Oklahoma City police were attempting to learn where the children came from. The children were placed for the night in a private home in Jacksonville.

Beecham said O'Hara and Westenhaver both said they were painters. They offered no resistance when they were arrested at a local motel, he said.

Mayor Yorty Announces For President

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mayor Sam Yorty announced Tuesday he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president. He conceded it would be "an uphill fight."

Yorty, who said he was encouraged by his spadework so far in New Hampshire, said he would enter that state's primary election, first in the nation, and then decide which others to enter. He stressed that his candidacy was serious even though he lacks funds.

The third-term mayor of the nation's third largest city, whose own campaign literature has described him as a "political maverick," said that his bid at the Democratic National Convention in Miami will be based on support he expects from the American public and rank-and-file party members.

"My position on the issues will be that of a moderate Democrat," he said, explaining he felt this would appeal to party members dissatisfied both with "left-wing Democratic leaders" and President Nixon.

Yorty joins Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota as the second Democrat formally seeking the party's presidential nomination. McGovern announced several months ago, and Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine is expected to announce his candidacy around the first of the year.

Economy

contract was ratified half an hour before the deadline, thereby falling under a Pay Board rule that will allow it to go into effect automatically, subject to being challenged and rolled back.

A challenge could be filed either by management or by five Pay Board members. The raises could be rolled back if the full board decides they are "unreasonably inconsistent" with the 5.5 per cent rule for new contracts.

The signalmen's agreement falls directly under the rules for new agreements. If it is ratified it apparently will have to be approved by the Pay Board before it can become effective. This is because the board requires that agreements covering more than 5,000 workers get advance approval, and the signalmen claim 12,000 members.

The signalmen tied up the nation's railroads with a two-day strike last May that was stopped by an act of Congress. They have been legally free to strike since Oct. 1.

Tax

Meanwhile, Democrats unveiled Tuesday night their presidential campaign-financing plan. It was introduced as a tax-bill amendment by Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., who said it will be called up for debate Wednesday.

The plan would provide about $20 million each to the major-party nominees next year.

Security

informally submitted it to the White House and the Office of Management and Budget where he said it is now being studied.

The change, he said, would put into law what has been the practice in recent years—Congress has taken the size of the trust fund into account when it considered increasing benefits and boosting the payroll tax rate.

Richardson did not discuss the potential political impact of the proposal, but White House aides are reported enthusiastic about the possibility of an election-year move to halt the upward spiral in Social Security taxes and to increase benefit levels.

Officials have not specified the size of the benefit increase which could result from the change. But they say the revised accounting method would have the effect of freezing the Social Security tax rate at 5.4 per cent until the year 2010.

At present, employes and employers each contribute 5.2 per cent, but this would go to 7.4 per cent by 1977 under House-passed legislation.

The change, however, would not rule out increases in the level of earnings on which taxes are paid. The level currently is $7,800 and is scheduled to go to $9,000 next year.

Aid

shouted its approval.

Although extending the programs to Dec. 1, the Senate resolution continues foreign aid only at the $2.7 billion for which it has approved regular appropriation bills, not the present spending level of $2.9 billion which the House had approved.

That figure doesn't actually mean much, however, because it is only an interim spending measure covering two weeks.

House leaders, meanwhile, continued to work on a rare parliamentary maneuver to get a regular foreign aid bill of up to $3 billion through the House without a direct vote and into House-Senate conference with the Senate's $2.7-billion bills.

But the House appears unlikely to act on a regular foreign aid bill before returning from the Thanksgiving recess Nov. 29.

About $6 million would be provided for a third-party nominee.

The money would be raised through an income tax checkoff system. Each taxpayer could check a box on his tax return allocating $1 of his payment to the campaign financing fund.

Most Republicans are expected to fight the proposal.

The Senate adopted 46-34 an amendment of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., to give $992 million of additional tax relief to low-income families in 1971.

It would do this by moving up to the present year the new $1,300 minimum standard deduction. Under the House version of the legislation, $1,300 would not be allowed until 1972. The minimum standard deduction for 1971 under present law is $1,050.

The Nixon administration opposed the amendment.

The Senate adopted 56-24 an amendment of Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., to give a 10 per cent tax credit to job-creating enterprises in central cities with unemployment of 6 per cent or more.

This would be more generous than the general 7 per cent investment credit on new machinery and equipment in the bill.

Also adopted on a 60-19 vote was an amendment of Sen. James B. Pearson, R-Kan., to allow a 10 per cent credit on investments which create new jobs in rural areas.

He said this would stimulate more balanced national growth by stopping some of the massive urbanization in recent years.

The Ribicoff proposal would cost an estimated $500 million a year, the Pearson amendment $250 million. Both were opposed by the administration.

Mariner Gives Scientists Second Look At Mars

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Mariner 9's television cameras peered through the thick dust storm swirling on Mars Tuesday and gave scientists a dramatic second look at the strange ridge-like features on Mars' south polar cap.

The cap is covered with frozen carbon dioxide and appeared on television monitors at the California Institute of Technology Jet Propulsion Laboratory as starkly white against the gray surroundings.

At least one scientist thought the photos answered a question that has puzzled Mars experts since the area was first seen briefly by Mariner 7 in 1969.

The same area was first seen dimly through the dust Sunday after Mariner 9 went into Martian orbit.

Earlier Tuesday, space agency officials announced they had sent some early data obtained by the spacecraft to the Soviet Union via a special "hot line" teletype circuit set up between Pasadena and Moscow. Two Russian space probes, Mars 2 and 3, are expected to arrive at Mars later this month.

The ridge-like features of the area, called quasilinear features, were discovered by Mariner 7 in 1969. Scientists want to know if the ridge of Martian mountains is covered by the frozen carbon dioxide or whether the ridges are made of carbon dioxide by some unknown process.

Caltech scientist Dr. Bruce Murray said detailed study of the photographs might determine exactly what they are.

The television cameras were able to see the polar cap Tuesday after scientists made some adjustments in the "seeing angles," the angle at which the cameras photograph the surface. They did this in hopes they could see through the dust, and purposely pointed the cameras at the area where they had obtained the eariier picture Sunday.

The Teletype circuit was set up earlier this month after agreement was reached between the two countries to exchange significant data.

The data which National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials sent contained routine information regarding Mariner 9's mission to date.

Supreme Court To Check Claims About Spying

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court agreed Tuesday to take a look at claims by civilians and peace groups that the Army is engaged in unconstitutional and speech-inhibiting spying.

The court acted at the behest of the Justice Department. The move at least delays a fulldress federal District Court hearing into Army spying.

The government will argue that individuals cannot bring suit against an Army surveillance system unless they can show first that they were spying victims.

The case will be considered by the justices early next year. The court by then will be up to full nine-member strength if the Senate confirms nominees William H. Rehnquist and Lewis F. Powell Jr., both of whom are conservatives.

The District Court hearing was ordered last April by the U.S. Circuit Court here in a suit filed by the American Civil Liberties Union in behalf of seven antiwar groups, five individuals and the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes. The Circuit Court called for a determination of whether Army spying was unrelated to its "mission as defined by the Constitution."

The Supreme Court could kill the suit if it decides to overrule the Circuit Court. The Justice Department contends the ACLU is seeking an advisory opinion on "indefinite and abstract assertions."

In a 6-1 decision, the high court barred Montana and all states from denying welfare assistance to new residents. The case concerned Victor Pease, a ranch hand who migrated from the state of Washington and was denied unemployment benefits in Cascade County in 1969 because he had not lived in Montana for at least a year.

In a 1969 ruling the court struck down one-year residence requirements for welfare programs funded in part by the federal government. In the Montana case the welfare came entirely from county funds.

The ruling said the source of the money "is irrelevant to the constitutional principles involved," including the right of poor people to travel. Chief Justice Warren E. Burger dissented, saying the court should have heard argument on the issues before reaching a decision.

In other actions the court:

—Blocked, 5 to 2, trial of Arnold Maxwell Harris in Clark County, Wash., on a charge of slaying his infant son since he has been acquitted of a related murder. The decision was based on the double jeopardy provision of the Fifth Amendment. Burger and Justice Harry A. Blackmun dissented.

—Agreed to rule on a Tennessee law that requires a defendant to be the first defense witness if he chooses to testify for himself. Kentucky has a similar law.

—Agreed to rule on the jurisdiction of federal courts to handle discharge suits by military reservists who say they are conscientious objectors.

—Agreed to decide in a Georgia railroad case whether discharged workers can sue for damages before their grievances are taken up by the National Railroad Adjustment Board.

Strip Mining Labeled Cancer By Hechler

WASHINGTON (AP) — Strip mining is a cancer for which administration legislative proposals offer only guidelines rather than a cure, a congressman from coal country said Tuesday.

"The administration bill on strip mining does not propose to remove this cancer," Rep. Ken Hechler, D-WVa., told the Senate subcommittee on minerals.

"The states are required to administer the actual regulations—so the blame for the ensuing disaster can be kept a safe distance from Washington," he said.

Hechler, sponsor of a bill to ban strip mining, said "The time to end strip mining for coal is now, when the temporary job losses in most areas can be offset even in the short term by economic and social gains for the surrounding communities."

It is not simply one more problem for Appalachia, Heckler said, pointing to strippable reserves of minerals in 28 states.

Hollis M. Dole, assistant Secretary of the Interior testifying for the administration's proposed Mined Area Protection Act of 1971, said a ban on strip mining would be "catastrophic."

Russell E. Train, chairman of the Council on Environmental Quality, said the administration proposal allows each state two years to develop its own regulations under federal criteria.

"If a state fails to develop an acceptable regulatory program, or fails to enforce its regulations, the bill calls for the Secretary of the Interior to promulgate and enforce regulations," said Train.

The bill "makes a comprehensive attack on the adverse environmental effects of both surface and underground mining," he said.

Location Clarified

The John Rix property described Tuesday in a zoning hearing story is located just south of the Akeley turn-off and not the Russell turn-off as was stated in the story.

$285,844.82 Paid By State To Schools

Intermediate Unit Six of the public school system, which includes the Forest Area School District, has been paid $285,884.82 in state funds to cover costs of special classes for exceptional children. This represents one-half of the amount budgeted for the program in school districts in Jefferson, Venango and Forest counties and the DuBois area in Clearfield County according to Howard Chestnut of the Clarion Manor Intermediate Unit at Shippenville.

In previous years, state funds for reimbursement of the costs of the special education program were made directly to the county school boards, now eliminated in the intermediate unit system.

Under the new system, in operation for the first time this year, state funds for conducting these classes are advanced to the governing board of the unit and are then applied to each district for the cost of the classes.

Intermediate Unit Six serves several thousand students through the services of 14 speech correctionists, six trainable classes for the uneducable, two itinerant teachers for the vision handicapped, eight educable classes for the retarded, three school social workers, six school supervisors and psychologists and a director of special education.

$300 Million Contract Awarded To Westinghouse

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Westinghouse Electric Corp. said Tuesday it has been awarded the largest foreign contract in its history — a $300 million pact to construct three large nuclear power plants in Spain with an option for a fourth.

Joseph C. Rengel, executive vice president for nuclear energy systems at Westinghouse, said the contracts involve the supply of a pressurized water nuclear stream supply system, nuclear fuel and turbine-generator for each unit.

Rengel said one phase of the construction will be for a 930,000-kilowatt unit, with the option for a second, from Iberduero S.A., the largest single producer of electricity in Spain. The plant will be built at Lemoniz near Bilbao in northern Spain.

Two 930,000-kilowatt units will be built for a group of three major Spanish utilities which together supply most of the power consumed in central Spain, Rengel said. These plants will be built near Almaraz on the Tagus River about 180 miles southwest of Madrid.

Rengel said most of the dollars required for the plants will be financed through the World Bank.

The bulk of the work in building the three nuclear units will be done at Westinghouse facilities here and in nearby Blairsville, Indiana County, and at company facilities in Tampa and Pensacola, Fla., Rengel said.

Attica State Prison Remains Tense

NEW YORK (AP) — Attica state prison remains tense, and numerous inmate dissatisfactions have not been redressed, a special investigative panel appointed by the governor reported Tuesday.

The panel said improvements had been made since the bloody quelling Sept. 13 of the four-day inmate insurrection at the upstate prison. In some instances, privileges have been restored, even when unearned, to allay the still-seething discontent, its official report said.

The board was named by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller to examine conditions at the prison following the insurrection, in which 43 persons—32 inmates and 11 prison personnel—perished, most in gunfire behind which state forces moved in.

The five-member board said, "The danger of harassment continues and the likelihood of unjust retaliatory and inflammatory acts in parole and other areas still remains."

However, its report said, "The Department of Correctional Services has agreed to take further steps suggested."

The panel visited and talked with Attica inmates transferred to other facilities after the riots and also interviewed prisoners transferred to Mayer Memorial Hospital, Buffalo, N.Y., and found their treatment to be satisfactory.

During early tours, the panel said it found the most pressing needs were easement of severe overcrowding, filling prisoners' medical inventories and increased monitoring in view of inmates' allegations of postriot beatings.

Other needs it said it found were for bath facilities, provision for writing paper, toothpaste and personal articles, replacement of dentures and eyeglasses and improvements in food.

The report said arrangement was made for greater access for counsel to prisoner. In the beginning, it said, "although the rooms provided for attorney interviews were excellent, the number of rooms or the term allowed for counsel to be in the institution was not ... in the mind of the panel, adequate."

The panel said it had become concerned over whether prisoners' rights to parole were being violated by the correctional authorities, over procedures followed in questioning of inmates in various probes and the return of personal property to prisoners.

Actor Seeks To Set Up Black Repertory Theaters

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Hooks recently took a week off from work to earn some money as a guest star in a television series.

Since February, when he completed a movie pilot for CBS, Hooks has been pinching pennies to establish a black repertory theater in his home town, Washington, D.C.

Hooks previously helped found the Negro Ensemble Company in New York while he was costarring in the series "N.Y.P.D."

The pilot movie, "The Cable Car Murder," will be seen on "The New CBS Friday Night Movies" this week. In it Hooks plays a black police inspector in San Francisco. If CBS picks it up as a series next year it will fit into his own personal plans to move on to Los Angeles to establish a repertory theater there.

A part in ABC's "The Man and the City" was his first since he completed the pilot. "I'd turned down 10 or 12 jobs until this came along," he said. "So I figured I could take off seven days and make some money."

But Hooks found he was spending almost as much time on the phone back to Washington as he was before the cameras. He said, "I just can't leave anymore. Selling a theater project—a black theater project—you have to infiltrate the black community. You have to meet people. You have to go around all the time talking to people. That's the job—hustling grants."

Hooks sees the black repertory theater as a cultural institution that is of, by and for the blacks. "These are important projects and that's why I make the sacrifice," he said. "Sometimes I'd like to run back and make some money."

The D.C. Black Repertory Theatre has 115 people enrolled in its free workshop, learning acting, directing, writing, and other stagecraft. "I'd say 20 are ready to turn pro tomorrow," Hooks said. "But there's just no outlet in Washington. I'm trying to create an outlet."

Six Charleston People Found Shot To Death

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Six persons from two families were shot to death in the head at close range here Tuesday in unrelated incidents. The shootings occurred just blocks apart in a fashionable neighborhood here.

Police said a prominent physician and his wife were murdered while a family of four was wiped out when a man killed his wife and two sons and then took his own life.

"This is the most awful thing I've ever seen," a patrolman said as he looked at the home where Robert Eder, 30, apparently killed his wife and two boys and then shot himself in the head with a shotgun.

Their bodies were discovered by a neighbor at about the same time police detectives were investigating the slayings of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Cottrell Jr.

Eder, a federal employe, had an appointment scheduled with a psychiatrist in December. Tuesday morning, the psychiatrist's office tried to call the home to ask Eder to report for a 10 a.m. appointment on Tuesday because another patient had cancelled.

"We've got no weapons and no suspects," Police Chief Lawrence Morris said Tuesday afternoon of the Cottrell deaths.

Cottrell, 50, and his wife Betty, 36, were each shot once in the head at close range, officers said.

Morris said he had ordered increased police coverage in the Fort Hill section, and appealed to Charleston residents to be calm but careful.

TelePrompTer Board Meeting Delay Sought By Court

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal court suit seeking to delay the Nov. 24 annual meeting of TelePromTer Corp. was filed Tuesday and alleged that the resignation last Friday of Irving Kahn as the corporation's board chairman was "a complete sham."

"The remaining 11 members of the board were and still are Kahn's nominees and remain completely under his control," said the complaint in U.S. District Court. It asserted that it appears as though Kahn intends to continue running the company as before, at a $200,000 a year salary, with "all the perquisites of a chief executive including a chauffeur-driven limousine, a luxury apartment and a yacht."

The assertions were made in a civil suit by William D. Lawry, of North Hollywood, Calif., who said he owns more than the 1,300 TelePromTer shares worth some $75,000.

Kahn is to be sentenced Nov. 30 after conviction of bribery conspiracy in connection with a cable television franchise in Johnstown, Pa.

The complaint said the declared resignation of Kahn was a "misleading act" in violation of federal securities laws.

"The representation that Kahn is no longer the head of TPT, designed to prevent the shareholders from deserting the management team at the forthcoming meeting, is patently misleading and a clear violation of the letter and spirit of the proxy rules," the complaint said.

Lawry asked the court to enjoin "further violations" and "to give more time for stockholders to react to the events."

Lawry's complaint said that a recent proxy statement "did not mention that some 72 licenses issued to TPT by the Federal Communications Commission were expressly made subject to review pending the outcome of the criminal proceedings," with "substantial risk that the FCC would modify or revoke those licenses.

The plaintiff also viewed as "another glaring omission" the alleged absence from the Sept. 10 proxy statement information about a pending Trenton, N.J., indictment that named Kahn a coconspirator but not a defendant, after he testified under immunity.

Judge Dudley B. Bonsal, signed an order for TelePrompTer, Kahn and the executive committee to show cause Nov. 23 why the meeting should not be postponed.

Top Aide To Col. Henderson Held My Lai Investigation

FT. MEADE, Md. (AP) — Shortly after the My Lai massacre the top aide to Col. Oran K. Henderson changed his work habits, became secretive and appeared to be conducting an investigation, a former Army helicopter pilot testified Tuesday.

Jeffrey C. Howard, now a real estate salesman in Athens, Ga., told Henderson's My Lai coverup trial that he flew the aide, the late Lt. Col. Frank Barker, on about 15 trips to various field locations in Vietnam. Barker had been commander of the assault force at My Lai.

Howard said that while Barker previously had left arrangements for such visits to his pilots, after the My Lai operation he conducted all necessary radio traffic, kept destinations secret until the last moment and rarely discussed business with aviation personnel.

"It was definite he was searching out individuals in the field," the former captain said. "I had an opinion he was conducting an investigation."

Howard testified to support a defense contention that Henderson ordered Barker, his executive officer and before that the commander of the My Lai assault force, to conduct a formal investigation of atrocity reports.

Several persons have testified in the Henderson case to having seen what appeared to be a formal report by Barker on the My Lai operation of March 16, 1968, but the Army says the document has been irretrievably lost.

Barker died in a helicopter crash in June 1968.

Henderson, 51, is charged with willfully failing to properly investigate atrocity reports and with lying to a Pentagon inquiry into reporting of the My Lai massacre.

Lt. Col. Raymond P. Hoffman, Jr., an Episcopal chaplain who served with the 11th Brigade, testified that another chaplain, Carl Creswell, told him he had heard a rumor about brigade soldiers killing civilians at My Lai.

Hoffman said, however, he dismissed the report as untrue because Creswell was always "ragging — joking — about everything, whether about a general, commanding officer, the presiding bishop or food."

Creswell, an Episcopal minister, is not on a list of prospective witnesses issued by the defense.

No Handouts Needed

Will America's much-acclaimed free enterprise system eventually become a burdensome cost to the taxpayer? This is a question that comes to mind as more and more private interests lobby in Congress for a handout to tide them over the rough spots encountered during the fluctuating economic conditions in these modern times.

Defense contractors, after enjoying a long spree of booming business, have extended their efforts to have the Pentagon boost their profit margins and give out with other aid now that defense cutbacks are hitting them where it hurts.

The airlines, after several lush years, are also feeling a business pinch. They are asking that the government foot the bill for developing new planes, and government assistance in keeping international plane fares at their competitive level.

The railroads are seeking the kind of financial help already dished out to Lockheed and Penn Central.

Lesser industries have been so slow moving in research and development efforts that the President has been talking of providing them with tax breaks and financial incentives that would supposedly get them moving with renewed American verve.

In fact, if every request presently being pressured for through Congressional action were to get an affirmative nod with some form of financial assistance granted, the nation would have established an industrial welfare system of immense proportions. And the taxpayer, already burdened with excesses of governmental give-away programs, could find this additional load to be unbearable.

Three decades of an economy based on war or preparation for war have left our industrial complex poorly suited to adjust to present economic conditions. And there undoubtedly exists a need for consideration of industry's problems. But as citizens and taxpayers it is our duty to convince Congress that give-away programs have never solved a one of our problems, but American ingenuity has.

'OH, WELL, OFF INTO THE WORLD AGAIN . . .'

Congress Gives Nixon Last Chance On ABM

Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON -- President Nixon has one last unhindered chance to reach an agreement with the Soviet Union on anti-ballistic missiles. (ABM).

He was given that opportunity when the once-powerful movement to kill the Safeguard ABM program collapsed on the Senate floor -- undercut by diplomatic developments, pre-empted by action from the Senate Armed Services Committee and wracked by disorganization.

A Congressional Quarterly survey of those involved, however, shows that opposition to the ABM is not dead. The movement's one-time supporters are in a lull, waiting.

And while they wait, a related ABM controversy was carried all the way to the Supreme Court. Conservationists tried unsuccessfully to stop the Nov. 6 ABM warhead test, code-named Cannikin, on the Alaskan island of Amchitka.

Word from SALT

The anti-ABM movement in the Senate has not been defeated, its supporters say, but has staged a strategic retreat while waiting for word from the strategic arms limitation treaty (SALT) talks.

If Mr. Nixon cannot guide U.S. negotiators to some type of settlement in the SALT talks -- Capitol Hill sources indicate a first-stage settlement now hinges only on political considerations -- then the President will face a revitalized opposition movement in the Senate this spring.

The fifth round of SALT talks, to be held in Vienna instead of Helsinki this time, was scheduled to convene Monday, Nov. 15.

One-third Paid For

Although the $7.1-billion ABM system is only about one-third paid for ($2.5-billion had been spent by Sept. 30), Senate opposition to funding this year's $1.1-billion portion of the project evaporated when the authorization bill was brought to the Senate floor.

So close are the United States and Soviet Union to reaching at least a partial settlement in the SALT talks, said Kentucky Republican Sen. John Sherman Cooper, that no action should be taken to further reduce the Safeguard ABM program this year.

Cooper visited Helsinki in August. His assessment of the SALT situation, combined with his dramatic announcement that he would support the current Safeguard program after he had for three years led the fight to halt the system, was a blow to the anti-ABM forces in the Senate.

"Cooper was given a horse and pony show over in Helsinki," one anti-ABM lobbyist told Congressional Quarterly. "He was sold a bill of goods."

'Will Never Be Built'

"I have not changed my views about the inadequacies of the Safeguard system," Cooper told the Senate. He then said that if no agreement came from the SALT talks by next spring, he would again join the opposition forces to the ABM.

Dr. Jeremy J. Stone, director of the American Federation of Scientists, said: "In the long run, the ABM has been defeated. Each year the rationale has changed for keeping this program alive and each year the size of the program itself has been reduced."

William G. Miller, an ABM expert on Sen. Cooper's staff, told Congressional Quarterly: "The technological questions have been answered. Technology ceased to be an issue even last year and it (voting for ABM funding) is now entirely to support the negotiators at SALT."

'Who's Going to Listen'

Senate opposition to the Safeguard program faded this year, a Congressional Quarterly survey shows, because:

+Action by the Senate Armed Services Committee limited the ABM program to the boundaries the anti-ABM forces would have fought for on the Senate floor.

+Anti-ABM lobbyists were not lobbying, partially, they said, because their function had been to educate people about the ABM and there were few scientific aspects that had not already been explored.

+Some Senators believe that a SALT settlement on ABM is near and can be reached if there is no interference with the ongoing ABM program so that U.S. negotiators can use the ABM as a bargaining chip with the Soviets.

+Opposition to the ABM was poorly organized this year.

"Liberals have this natural tendency not to agree to focus on a limited number of issues," one Senate aide explained. "They come running into the Senate with 50 different amendments (on many different issues) and, my God, who's going to listen to them?"

They Stayed Away

For the last two years, Senate floor debate over Safeguard ABM funding has been surpassed only by the Vietnam war as a time-consuming issue.

This year the Senate spent 90 minutes debating the one amendment offered to slash the ABM authorization. The proposal was voted down by a 21-64 margin. And, no greater opposition is expected on the upcoming Defense appropriations bill.

Last year's foes of the ABM program -- including such Democrats as George McGovern, (S.D.), Alan Cranston (Calif.), Fred Harris (Okla.) and Birch Bayh (Ind.) and Republicans Jacob K. Javits (N.Y.) and William B. Saxbe (Ohio) -- stayed away from the Senate on the day of the vote to cut funds.

Others, who came, made dramatic reversals in their opposition posture to the weapon system -- Frank Church (D Idaho), Edward W. Brooke (R Mass.), Clifford P. Case (R N.J.) and Caliborne Pell (D R.I.) and Cooper.

The Forgotten Battle

By James Reston

WASHINGTON—On the surface, the political atmosphere here seems flat and dull, but under the surface there is quite a lot of exciting activity, which could be important and even decisive in the voting next November.

It is in these quiet periods, even before the presidential primary elections, when the hard work of organization and registration is done, and if you watch the back pages of the newspapers, you will see considerable evidence of this careful preliminary foundation building.

Almost without notice, for example, the legislatures in most of the large states have been passing bills to permit the newly enfranchised eleven million 18-21 year-olds to vote next November on campus, rather than at the place of their parents' residence. This could make a difference of several million votes, and in a few key states, could tip the balance to one party or the other.

Also, there is a move on here in the Democratic-controlled congress to pass legislation that would establish voters to register by mail, and this, too, would undoubtedly increase the size of the vote substantially and probably favor the Democratic presidential nominee.

Much will depend, too, on the outcome of the current battle on Capitol Hill over campaign spending reform. The present system, by general agreement, is not only a scandal but a disgrace. The only trouble is that it will probably be decided by men who have managed to get to congress under this outrageous system, and it is not at all sure at this moment that the reform will go through.

What is going on in these rather dull, scattered, and technical debates over election spending and registration is really the critical strategic battle of the campaign. These things are going to set the stage for the big drama later on. They are going to decide who votes, for one thing, which is not incidental in an election, and who has money for television, which in the frenzy next October may be critical.

And the interesting paradox at the moment is that even the young people with the most education on the intricate American federal and electoral system, and with the most energy and the loudest grievances, are not really very active in these preliminary battles. Some of them are, of course, but most of them are "waiting for the election," though what is going on right now in these seemingly dreary nuts and bolts debates could actually decide the election.

The election is flat and dull on the surface precisely because the candidates are working underground on the substructure of the campaign. They are not polishing sentences, but organizing teams and gathering funds. That is what this phase of a presidential election campaign is all about, and it is far too important to be left merely to the candidates and their staffs, and the organized lobbies.

Labor's political activity these days illustrates the point. George Meany, the president of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations, is very active on the propaganda front. He is denouncing the Pay Board's wage decisions as a "swindle" and condemning President Nixon for "romancing" Moscow and Peking, and being "nice to tyrants" who pay low wages and threaten the security of the republic and the American worker.

But big labor is too experienced to stop there. Underneath all George Meany's hawkish and protectionist arguments, and his demands for more money for the workers, his director of the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education, Alexander E. Barkan, is concentrating on showing labor leaders all over the country how to get their places in the Democratic presidential nominating convention next summer, under the new rules of that convention.

The White House and the Republican National Committee are doing the same thing. They are raising funds—over $5 million this week in a series of GOP closed-circuit television dinners. They are quietly blocking legislation for campaign expenditure reform, while seeming to support it, and trying to limit the registration of the new young voters, while proclaiming in their propaganda sheet the new "Alliance of the Generations."

Against this kind of professional organizing, the young protestors and even the disenchanted Common Cause people's lobby seem woefully inadequate. The occupancy and policies of the White House are not going to be changed by demonstrations against Vietnam in front of the President's house, no matter how sincere. The battleground has changed.

The battleground is now, and for the next few months will be, on the problems of organization, registration, and campaign financial reform, and on this ground, the new rising enfranchised generation has immense potential political power. But, or so it seems here, they have misjudged the question and the time.

They are waiting for some candidate to emerge with a new philosophy for the coming age, and maybe it will happen, but probably it won't, and meanwhile, organization and money will be decisive in the end. That is why, in this flat and dull period on the surface, what is going on underneath is so important. The politicians are paying attention to the details and the rules of the election. They know the importance of timing, of money and getting the "right" delegates lined up in advance. That is what is going on now and it could be decisive before the disenchanted amateurs wake up to the importance of political organization and finance.

The Last Curtain

WAITING IN THE WINGS

The drive out of Paris is scented. The Seine, with its autumn sheen of silver, stands still. The trees along the boulevard are old and thick and sturdy, like peasants who have worked with their hands. Eighteen miles out, the trees become younger, more slender, silent sentries changing uniform from green to golden russet.

LaLouque comes into view suddenly. It is a villa with turrets and slate roof, a specter in military gray. Touch the bell. After an interval, a butler responds. The center hall is done in black and white tile. A hidden light in the ceiling squints at a standing easel. On it is the portrait of an old lady with a small sweet smile, a pancake of a plum velvet hat on her head, with ribbons tied under her chin.

No Longer 'Living'

The portrait is ageless. The lady is Maurice Chevalier's mother. This is his love. His true love. He is upstairs. The great lover will not come down. He is 82, and he has resigned from life. The gorgeous square-toothed smile, the jutting lower lip, the sparkling message of danger in the eyes, have been put away in the closet of his mind.

Whatever silent peace a man makes with himself and with his God, he makes alone. The nine servants dust the expensive end tables, trim the rose bushes and the sea-green lawn in back, speak softly and tread lightly. The raft of children come in from school with orders not to shout. They belong to the servants.

The man upstairs certified the fiction that they belong to him. He never returned from a trip abroad without bringing presents wrapped in flame ribbons, shouting happily: "My bay-bees!" as he entered the house. Now they are growing and he is going. Maurice Chevalier is not ill. An old man is entitled to resign.

He and I used to sit and chat about the dear dead days when he was too young and Mistinguett was too old. He had a straw hat, a cane, and he sang naughty songs of romantic flirtations. She was the big star, and she smothered him with her love.

American motion pictures took him out of the Folies Bergere and made him bigger than Mistinguett. Dry-eyed, she watched him go. In her haughty age, she too resigned. The legs, insured for a million, would no longer support her body..

Maurice Chevalier earned a fortune and he was the toast, and more than the toast, of fifty million women. He was a secret love. When his face came on the screen, two stories high, he would sing a love song and turn on that smile. Shopgirls felt their hearts flutter against the cages.

He had affairs. Numbers of them. He thought of himself as the gay lover, but the ladies saw him for what he was—the slightly sad sentimentalist. Up until 1966, Chevalier never visited a city in Europe or the United States without remembering a special lady of forty or fifty years ago.

Assiduously, he would check whether she was alive, and where she lived. If it was not indelicate to call, he would arrive with a bouquet of small violets and a big box of chocolates. One of his ladies was in a London insane asylum, a catatonic. Chevalier visited the madhouse, and sat with her, pressing the violets into a bony dead hand.

An Ageless Artist

He was always conscious that his true enemy was the clock. It had to win, but Maurice Chevalier kept turning the hands back. His theatrical triumphs seemed to go on forever, right through "Gigi," when he made fun of his fear and sang: "I'm Glad I'm Not Young Anymore."

In 1925, he married. "It frightened me," he said. "One can afford a mistake in an affair of the heart. But not in marriage." Love died quickly. The divorce strangled in agony for four years. He never married again. Neither did she. The portrait in the center hall became more important. Mama was gone, but she lived on an easel.

Sometimes, after his seventieth birthday, Maurice would stand in the foyer, hands clasped before him, tracing every wrinkled feature on her face with his eyes, and then the broad Gallic smile would come alive and he was young again. Once more, in reverie, he was the handsome little French boy hanging onto her long swinging skirt as they walked the Bois de Boulogne.

At the age of 82, he bowed his defeat to the clock. He sees no plays, makes no visits, begs his friends not to come to LaLouque. He is upstairs alone, dwelling on the long voyage all men must make to the great perhaps.

He comes downstairs now and then. If he pauses before the portrait, no one watches. It is doubtful. You see, he is now older than she....

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON—The Army brass may have failed to stop drug abuse and racial strife in the ranks, but no one can accuse them of being soft on haircuts.

As evidence, SP-5 Harry DuVal, whose hair was found to be perhaps a quarter-inch too long, is awaiting court martial for this horrendous offense.

The alleged straggly locks were spotted by an eagle-eyed officer at the National Security Agency where DuVal performs hush-hush chores for the Army. It wasn't, alas, the first time DuVal's hair had slightly outgrown Army specifications.

He was called in by his superior, Capt. Robert Caddell, who grimly handed him a written order.

"I, the commanding officer of Co. B U.S. Army Security Agency Support Group, am giving you a lawful order to have your hair cut and your moustache trimmed to comply with the standards required by Army Regulations 600-20, Section 6, paragraphs 5-39," Caddell commanded in writing.

Suitably impressed DuVal hastened to his girlfriend's house for a trim, since it was too late in the day to consult a barber. She snipped off some of his locks and shortened his sideburns a bit.

But the young lady clearly has different tastes in hair styles than does Gen. William Westmoreland, the Army chief, whose haircut edicts have led to the crackdown on GI hair. For despite the trim, DuVal's hair length was found next morning to beyond the legal limit.

HAIRCUT COURT MARTIAL

No less than Col. Herman Conrad, the group commander, made the morning inspection. He expressed dissatisfaction with DuVal's haircut and ordered him court-martialed for disobeying a written order.

Last July, DuVal came perilously close to an earlier court martial. The intrepid hair inspector of Company B, Captain Caddell, ordered DuVal to get a haircut. The GI protested that his hair didn't reach his collar and said he wanted to talk to a lawyer. But in the end, he sumbitted to a regulation haircut.

Nevertheless, Caddell huffily ordered a court martial anyway. Colonel Conrad dismissed the charges and issued a letter of reprimand instead.

Now court martial charges are pending over the latest incident. "This chap just won't get a haircut," Colonel Conrad told us ruefully.

DuVal was trained by the taxpayers as an electronic warfare analyst. This is a highly specialized work requiring a top-secret clearance. While he is awaiting the Great Haircut Trial, however, the Army has assigned him to menial jobs.

TEAMSTERS AND NIXON

Insiders charge the Teamsters have become so cozy with the White House that they were able to block a presidential message on transportation.

The message was scheduled to be submitted to Congress on November 4. But the Teamsters raised some last-minute objections, say the insiders, with White House factotum Pete Flanigan.

The transportation message was finally delivered to Congress on November 8 under the signature, not of President Nixon, but of Transportation Undersecretary James Beggs.

Flanigan acknowledged to us that a last-minute decision was made not to put the President's imprimatur on the message. But he denied that the Teamsters had influenced the decision. "There wasn't in any sense a last-minute visitation by the Teamsters," he said.

For more than a year the Nixon Administration has been shaping legislation to increase competition in the transportation industry. This should lower freight rates which would reduce the cost of all goods shipped in interstate commerce. The savings presumably could be passed on to the consumers.

The railroads, truckers and barge operators, however, have been slipping around to argue with Flanigan against more competition. As the American Trucking Association's President W.A. Bresnahan put it to us the Nixon proposals would encourage small, unstable truckers "to move in and out of the industry like a fiddler's elbow."

Bresnahan also brought Teamsters boss Frank Fitzsimmons into the White House several months ago to meet Flanigan. Thereafter, Fitzsimmons and Flanigan remained in contact usually through intermediaries.

Of all the labor leaders, Fitzsimmons has shown the most willingness to cooperate with President Nixon in his efforts to stabilize the economy. This has given the Teamsters a little extra clout inside the White House.

But Flanigan insisted to us that the Teamsters had no more influence upon the transportation proposals than did the shippers.

PENNSYLVANIA STORY

Veterans Flex Political Muscle

By Mason Denison

HARRISBURG— If one member of Governor Shapp's Cabinet has his way, Pennsylvania'a war veterans will have a significant role in next year's critically important congressional, legislative and local elections in the Keystone State.

Spearheading this political action within the state's 67 counties will be the two-year-old League of United Veteran Clubs.

The Shapp Cabinet member involved is none other than Frank C. Hilton, of Meadville up in Crawford County, commander of the League and a former state and national commander of the prestigious Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Long active in veterans' affairs, Mr. Hilton, who in the Shapp Cabinet is Secretary of the Department of Property and Supplies, said reactivation of the League of United Veteran Clubs will begin December 4 with an afternoon meeting and a dinner that evening in Harrisburg's Penn-Harris Hotel.

In an interview, World War II veteran Hilton pulled no punches as to the League's purposes, and although stressing that the League is not affiliated or under the jurisdiction of any political party, said:

"We will be active within the Democratic Party as a unit, and outside the party as individuals.

"We make it clear now that we will urge the nomination and effectively support war veterans with every possible political means, including funds adequate for our purposes.

"There are enough interested war veterans around right now to swing the balance of electoral power."

He said that in doing this, "we follow the principal purposes of the League of United Veteran Clubs of Pennsylvania which are to engage in civic and political activities of interest to veterans of the United States armed forces."

He echoed a theme that has bothered not only those directly concerned with the lot of returning servicemen, but also those ranking government officials everywhere, when he said:

"Too many of the returned young Vietnam veterans are deplorable victims of political rhetoric instead of being beneficiaries of deeds for their betterment.

"The League of United Veteran Clubs of Pennsylvania are weary of the ex-GI's having to endure shameful circumstances. We intend to do something constructive in their interest. It is evident, and we are convinced, veterans will not receive political recognition of their just requests for help until they become politically active."

He said war veterans cannot obtain political action within the long-established veterans organizations because their constitutions and by-laws prohibit their engaging in politics, with the result that political power consequently is being seized by non-veterans.

"The League of United Veteran Clubs is the only organization that can provide a political forum for Korean and Vietnam veterans—and all other veterans," Mr. Hilton said, adding:

"The League has an enormous power potential. We intend to exercise it in the best interests of our members and their families, our party, Pennsylvania and the nation."

(Chartered in 1969 it was also very active in Governor Shapp's two successful campaigns last year.)

Shapp Collects World Series Bet

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Maryland's Gov. Marvin Mandel paid off Monday a bet he made on the outcome of the 1971 World Series.

Mandel had bet Gov. Milton Shapp of Pennsylvania that the Baltimore Orioles would emerge from the series victorious. He said if the Pittsburgh Pirates won—which they did—Mandel would give Shapp a bushel of Chesapeake Bay hard crabs.

Shapp had agreed to give Mandel a bushel of choice Pennsylvania mushrooms if the Orioles won.

There was only one catch. The crabs were alive and kicking when the Pennsylvania governor accepted them.

But Mandel kindly threw in a large can of seasoning which Shapp could use to cook the Chesapeake delicacies, providing he could collect them all from the trunk of his car when he gets back to Pennsylvania.

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

Moonlighting: Job-Stealing?

By Sylvia Porter

Fact One: Our jobless rate has been hovering between 5.8 and 6 per cent for a year, longest and highest for a decade.

Fact Two: Simultaneously, the number of Americans holding two or more jobs is around an all-time record of four million, with one in 20 U.S. workers "moonlighting."

Who are the moonlighters, why are they, what do they earn, how do they affect those who have no jobs at all?

(1) The "who" is easy: teachers, policemen, mailmen and other postal workers, firemen, guards, farmers, musicians, state and local workers, pilots. Many are also highly paid corporation executives who hold second jobs as board members for other companies. A typical moonlighter is a family man between 25 and 44. Only 765,000 of today's millions of moonlighters are women.

Among the key moonlighting industries are: TV repairs, watch repairs, retail sales, teaching, entertaining, construction, forestry, transportation, real estate, bus driving, carpentry, hospital work, accounting, bookkeeping -- plus a wide variety of other services, ranging from acting to taxi driving. So widespread is moonlighting in colleges that at some, says the Labor Department, salaries are purposely kept low because it is assumed that most faculty members will find second jobs.

(2) The "why" also is a cinch: soaring costs of college education and of the necessities of life; debts (one in 10 holds a second job to pay off debts); luxury living, including two vacations, two homes; the desire to build up a second set of work skills or to establish a new business; simply the love of work.

(3) As for the "what they earn," the answer is enough to make moonlighting worthwhile to most. Extra earnings at second jobs average about $30 a week, with one in three male moonlighters taking home $50 or more and one in four men in the 25-44 year age bracket earning $70 or more. At $2.50 an hour, just 15 extra hours of work a week will expand your family's annual income by nearly $2,000.

A second job also can be an ideal opportunity to explore a new occupational field to find out if you would enjoy switching. It can be the right way to turn a hobby into a money-making "reserve career." It can provide a badly needed change of pace, a new creative outlet, an exciting challenge.

(4) But does moonlighting take jobs away from the unemployed?

NO, was the conclusion of an AFL-CIO study of precisely this question. Many moonlighting jobs are in the moonlighter's own business or in a skill which is his own. Often moonlighting involves only temporary work -- such as during the Christmas rush -- hardly the answer to the needs of the unemployed worker. Frequently, the jobs are during off-hours or in geographically inaccessible places to the unemployed. And very often, they require skills and talents not possessed by unemployed workers.

Let's say, therefore, that you are among the important minority who want or need a second job -- for any of the reasons mentioned above. How do you go about moonlighting?

+Explore the possibilities in your neighborhood of turning a treasured hobby into a paying proposition. If you play the guitar, can you teach the instrument to others? Or find a spot in a dance band occasionlly? Or hire yourself out for parties?

+Consider carefully what would be the best hours for you, then canvass possible employers. A few hours each evening? Or would working one full day a week fit in best? Or what about working a long weekend now and then?

+If your moonlighting can be done at home, find out about the valuable income tax deduction for which you might be eligible for an office at home.

+One caution before you take on a moonlighting job if you now work for someone else: your employer might have a policy forbidding this. One in five employers bans moonlighting and some labor unions also forbid their members to hold second jobs. The reasoning of employers is that the nature of the second job might produce a conflict of interest -- for instance, in the case of an engineer who would do research for another corporation in the same industry.

But that conflict of interest is so obvious, it doesn't warrant elaboration -- and since the majority of employers do permit moonlighting, the choice really is yours.

And don't feel guilty about taking a job away from the unemployed or flinch when you are unjustly accused of so doing. In the overwhelming percentage of cases, the jobless worker simply could not or would not take your place.

New Plant To Open Dec. 1 In Olean

OLEAN, N. Y. — A target date of December 1, 1971, has been set by Wheeling Corrugating Company for start-up of manufacturing operations in its new three-quarter million dollar plant in Olean's Felmont Industrial Park.

The plant, fronting on Franklin Street, will produce and distribute galvanized steel culvert pipe for the road-building and construction industries in Western New York and Northwestern Pennsylvania.

Market Prices Change Gears, Climb Higher In Midsession

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices changed gears in midsession and climbed higher in Tuesday's moderate trading.

The closing Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 8.18 to 818.71. The market was mixed most of the day, with blue-chip issues fractionally higher and declines leading advances on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts attributed the market's rise partly to technical reasons brought on by bargain hunting among selective issues that were attractively priced after recent heavy losses.

Robert Stovall, an analyst at Reynolds & Co., said another reason for the market's climb was that many traders had bought stock just in case Treasury Secretary John B. Connally makes a policy statement in a speech he was to give tonight. A Treasury Department spokesman said earlier Connally would not make a policy statement.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,300 common stocks gained .46 to 51.13.

Big board volume was 13.29 million shares compared to 9.38 million shares Monday.

There were 851 advances and 508 declines out of 1,681 issues traded on the Big Board. The market had 4 new yearly highs and 133 new lows.

The Associated Press 60-stock average rose .6 to 300.4, with industrials up 3.9, rails off 2.0 and utilities up .1.

Ninety-one big blocks of 10,000 shares or more were traded on the New York Stock Exchange, compared with 51 Monday. The biggest was 133,600 shares of Pan American at 10¼ off ⅜.

Aircrafts were off. Steels, farm implements, and electronics were mixed. All other stock categories were higher.

Volume leader on the Big Board was American Telephone & Telegraph, unchanged at 42¼.

American Stock Exchange prices also climbed. The Amex price-change index was up .08 at 24.12. Volume was 3.00 million shares. There were 479 advances and 364 declines out of 1,138 issues traded.

Hospitals Official Raps Insurance Guide To Hospitals

HARRISBURG (AP) — An official of the Hospital Association of Pennsylvania said the "Shopper's Guide to Area Hospitals" put out last week by the state Insurance Department is misleading.

"The guide is an over-simplified statement designed to grab headlines," said John F. Worman, executive vice president of the association. "It can serve no practical purpose and in fact might prove to be a disservice to patients whose chief desire is to get well, not find the best bargain in town."

The guide was a 12-page listing of some 89 Philadelphia area hospitals with the average per diem costs of each.

Worman criticized the guide for not describing the technical equipment and specialized services available at the hospitals which would drive up patient costs. He also said that low prices do not necessarily reflect the quality of care provided.

"In most cases, a patient's physician makes the decision on where his patient will be admitted and this is usually influenced by the complexity of the medical problem," Worman added.

PLAYING THE ODDS

NEW YORK—Here are a few pro football statistics that you may be willing to have rattle around in the distant recesses of your mind.

When the ball is inside the 5-yard line, the chances of scoring a touchdown are 1 in 7.

When a field goal is attempted, the chances of it being blocked are 1 in 10.

When a try is made for the extra point, the chances of it being missed are 1 in 31

What gives these numbers a timely fascination is that they seem to take on new emphasis in the light of some startling developments on Sunday. On an all-or-nothing fourth-down play in the final 31 seconds, Fran Tarkenton burst over from the 2-yard line to bring victory to the Giants.

But the Jets were twice balked by blocked kicks as they strove mightily to engineer another monstrous upset, one that would have matched their upending of the Kansas City Chiefs a week earlier. An extra point try that would have tied the score at 14-all was blocked by the Baltimore Colts. They also blocked a 22-yard field goal that presumably would have toppled them, 16-14.

"I'm not proud of the way we won," said Don McCafferty, the Colt coach. Naturally enough, he was not too proud to accept the victory. No one connected with sports is ever that high-minded.

But Tarkenton was bursting with pride at the way he had contrived to pull off a masterful coup. It achieved a lot of things. Primarily it won a game for the Giants that not many expected them to win. It was done before his neighbors in his home town of Atlanta. Most of all, though, it was the equivalent of a public nose-thumbing of his one-time coach and long-time antagonist, Norm Van Brocklin.

Both Fran and the Dutchman insisted before the game that there really wasn't even a latent antagonism. They even denied with expressions of proper piety that they hated each other. But Tark's desire for victory, always hot, had to reach a hellish intensity when he was quarterbacking a team against the Falcon club that is under the coaching aegis of Van Brocklin.

Not only did Tark get the better of it but he scored the winning touchdown himself. This was rubbing salt into the wounds.

The play that Tarkenton called on the goal line was "dive 33." It called for a handoff to Tucker Frederickson diving into the right side. Tucker made the dive and was horrified to discover that he didn't have the ball. Tark never did complete the hand-off. He faked it, held onto it himself and scored standing up.

As Tark was rattling off the signals he was startled to see the Falcon linebacker follow Joe Morrison, the man in motion, thereby vacating a position. The idea hit instantaneously. Tark would keep the ball and burrow through himself.

He never had to burrow. Willie Young threw a hole-opening block that was worth immortalizing like Jerry Kramer in "Instant Replay." Fran scampered through and the Giants won 21 to 17.

"When I discovered I didn't have the ball, said Frederickson to Coach Alex Webster in the clubhouse afterwards, "I thought I had messed up the play."

"I know how you felt," said Alex sympathetically. "In the old days Y.A. Tittle would call for me to run a play to the right. I'd go ripping through and discover I didn't have the ball. Tittle would be bootlegging it for a touchdown in the opposite direction. He claimed the play worked better when no one else knew what he was going to do."

It was a signal triumph for Tarkenton over his old adversary, The Dutchman. They knew each other so well, too. Perhaps Tark made this work to his advantage. Twice he had crucial fourth down calls. Van Brocklin alerted his defenders. In such situations the tendency probabilities for Fran was a rollout with either a pass or run on the end of it. He was unlikely to use the quarterback sneak. But he used it twice on Sunday, the second time for the winning score.

"It wasn't a quarterback sneak," someone heard The Dutchman mutter. "It was a sneaky quarterback." There might even have been a bit of grudging admiration in that remark. Van Brocklin was a great enough quarterback himself to have been elected to the pro football Hall Of Fame and he had to recognize an extra quality in Tarkenton.

If the fates were kind to the Giants, they were exceedingly unkind to the Jets. A week earlier they got every conceivable break in piecing together their upset of the Chiefs. They got no breaks at all against the Colts and even the officials seemed to be conspiring against them. Maybe it was the law of averages catching up with them and reaching out to embrace them. But why did it have to reach out so outrageously?

Wrestling Clinic For Warren Fans

In cooperation with the Warren Sports Boosters, Warren wrestling coach Lee Chew and his assistants have set up a wrestling clinic and meeting for the parents and all interested fans for Tuesday, November 23, in the Warren Area High gym at 7:30 p.m.

Among other segments on that night's agenda will be the changes, which are substantial, in the scoring and rules. Coach Chew will also explain the philosophy of his program and its intricacies. Plus a dissertation of the weight control methods that are policy.

The actual idea of this get-together is to better acquaint the wrestling parents and fans with what is involved in building and maintaining a successful program.

Lillian Zevotek Hits 600 On Nose

Lillian Zevotek celebrated long into Tuesday evening on her bowling merits. She was justifiably entitled. After any woman rolls eight strikes in a row for a 258 game and puts it together with two other lines and comes up with a 600 on the nose, she should celebrate.

Completing a 233 game, Ted Yucha completed a 633 last night at the Sugar Bowl, the highest any male could come up with in the county.

Cornell's Marinaro Can Break Record With Minus Yards

NEW YORK (AP) — Ed Marinaro, Cornell's record-setting senior running back, has clinched the NCAA rushing championship and is expected to set a new major college career average and assure his 200-yard season average at Penn Saturday.

Marinaro, who leads the rushers with a per-game average of 206.4 yards, could get minus 45 yards Saturday and still break O.J. Simpson's career mark of 164.4. He needs only 149 yards to wind up with a 200-yard season average.

Nebraska Retains Rating

Nebraska Coach Bob Devaney said Tuesday that his top-ranked Cornhuskers will play No. 2 Oklahoma Thanksgiving Day "with respect for a fine Oklahoma team but with the idea that we're going to stay No. 1."

The Cornhuskers remained atop the weekly Associated Press college football poll with 40 first-place votes and a season high 1,066 points from a panel of 55 sports writers and broadcasters. The Sooners held onto the second spot with eight first-place votes and 986 points.

Both teams remained undefeated lask week, Nebraska crushing Kansas State 44-17 and Oklahoma humiliating Kansas 56-10.

Michigan remained third with four No. 1 ballots and 788 points while Alabama, Auburn and Penn State polled one first place vote each as the fourth, fifth and sixth-ranked teams.

The only other undefeated team in the top 20 is No. 13 Toledo, which like Nebraska, Michigan and Alabama is 10-0. Oklahoma, Auburn and Penn State are 9-0.

Rounding out the top 10 are Notre Dame, No. 7, followed by Georgia, Arizona State and Colorado. Idle Tennessee held onto the 11th spot followed by Texas, Toledo, Louisiana State, Southern California, Houston, Arkansas, Stanford, Michigan State and Mississippi.

Auburn and Alabama, along with Nebraska and Oklahoma, are idle this Saturday awaiting Thanksgiving weekend showdowns.

Auburn and Alabama put their undefeated records on the line Nov. 27, two days after the Sooners and the Cornhuskers clash in Norman, Okla.

Onside Kick Aids Chargers Late Win

SAN DIEGO (AP) — San Diego Chargers Coach Sid Gillman called St. Louis abortive onside kick "the only way we could've won the ball game."

That wasn't the strategy of St. Louis Coach Bob Hollway when he ordered the move that led to the Chargers' 20-17 victory over his Cardinals Monday night. And Gillman said, "I don't second-guess anybody."

Before a national television audience and a San Diego Stadium crowd of 46,486 for the National Football League game, the Cardinals had managed a 17-17 tie with just 17 seconds remaining on Cid Edwards one-yard run.

Hollway said he called for the onside kick "to regain possession of the football" and go for a winning score. At worst, he said, the ball probably would go to the San Diego 30 or 35, force the Chargers to use their remaining time out and the game would end in a tie.

But the ball was fallen on by San Diego's Lee Thomas on the Charger 47 for good field position.

A 16-yard John Hadl-to-Gary Garrison pass moved the ball into St. Louis territory. San Diego's last time out allowed Dennis Partee to come in and boot the game winner "a one-in three-chance from that distance." Partee said.

St. Louis quarterback Jim Hart was ready to second guess his coach before he took time to reflect.

"At the time, I didn't think an onside kick was a good idea," Hart said. "But now, looking back, I think I'd have done the same thing. You have to drive to win."

Hadl, who completed 20 of 28 passes to Hart's 17 of 35, concurred with the St. Louis plan.

"They were 3-5 just like us, and they were going for the win. You can't blame them for that," Hadl said.

Rookie Mike Montgomery, making his first NFL start, was the Chargers' all-purpose weapon. He gained 98 yards in 17 carries, caught six passes for 77 yards and completed one of two passes for 33 yards-208 yards in total offense.

But without Partee's kick, Montgomery might have been a goat because his fumble enabled the Cardinals to drive for their last touchdown.

Two other Charger rookies, Bryant Salter and Ray White, made key plays in the game that made San Diego 4-5 in the American conference West and the Cardinals 3-6 in the National Conference East.

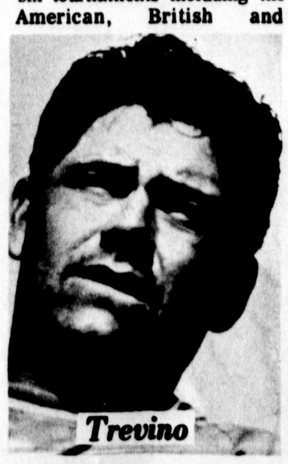
Salter intercepted two Hart passes, one setting up Hadl's four-yard pass to Jeff Queen for a 17-10 lead in the fourth quarter, and White blocked a 27-yard field goal attempt by Jim Bakken in the third period.

After White's block, the Chargers drove 72 yards for their first touchdown, a four-yard run by Queen, and a 10-10 tie.

The Cardinals had sandwiched a three-yard touchdown pass from Hart to Jim McFarland and a 13-yard Bakken field goal around Partee's 25-yard field goal for a 10-3 halftime lead.

Trevino Named Golfer Of Year

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Lee Trevino, winner of six tournaments including the American, British and Canadian Opens this year, was named Pro of the Year Tuesday night by the Professional Golfers Association.



Trevino

The PGA gave the El Paso, Tex. golfer the award at its 55th annual meeting.

Trevino and Jack Nicklaus last Sunday took top honors in the World Cup Tournament at Palm Beach Gardens.

The PGA also named Ross Collins of Dallas, Tex., the Club Professional of the Year. He is head pro at the Dallas Athletic Club.

Meanwhile, the PGA re-elected Warren W. Orlick of Orchard Lake, Mich., as its president.

Probable Bowl Match-Ups Pit Cornhuskers And 'Bama

MIAMI (AP) — Nebraska and Alabama appeared locked up Tuesday for the Orange Bowl football game New Year's night with reliable sources indicating an Oklahoma-Auburn matchup for the Sugar Bowl.

A Gator Bowl official also said the Jacksonville event was pushing to sign "two of three between Penn State, Notre Dame and Georgia."

Meanwhile, the Cotton Bowl in Dallas remained a mystery link in the post-season setup as it apparently wrestled between Penn State and Georgia from the Gator Bowl.

"Notre Dame," said the Gator Bowl source, "doesn't want to even talk until their regular season ends Saturday night against LSU."

Nebraska, 10-0, and Oklahoma, 9-0, are ranked 1-2 in The Associated Press poll, but an Orange Bowl source said neither team "wanted to go into their Thanksgiving Day showdown without a bowl contract in his pocket."

NCAA regulations prohibit signing of teams prior to 6 p.m., local time, Saturday although Notre Dame has been eligible to commit itself all week since the Irish wind up the regular season a week early.

Third-ranked Michigan, 10-0, and No. 18 Stanford 7-3, are set for the Rose Bowl and the Southwest Conference king—either Texas, Arkansas or Texas A&M—will half fill the Cotton Bowl.

Alabama carries a 10-0 record against Auburn, 9-0, in their Nov. 27 game in Birmingham.

Thus, it shaped for a massive gamble for both the Orange and Sugar Bowls since either could wind up with two undefeated teams or two outfits who lost their final games.

Georgia, 9-1, has a game remaining Thanksgiving night against Georgia Tech.

Kison's Series Cut Is Three-Quarters

NEW YORK (AP) — Baby-faced Bruce Kison, the hero of the first night game in World Series history, was given only a three-quarter share by the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates, Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced today.

The 21-year-old right-hander, who was called up by the Pirates in mid-season and compiled a 6-5 record before his World Series heroics, was voted $13,623.44 by his teammates. A full share was worth $18,164.58. The vote was taken before the Series.

Kison relieved starter Luke Walker in the first inning of the fourth World Series game against Baltimore on Oct. 13 and blanked the slugging Orioles on one hit over 6 1-3 innings. He left in the seventh inning for pinch hitter Milt May, who delivered the game-winning hit in a 4-3 Pittsburgh triumph.

Kison was credited with the victory, tying the series 2-2. Pittsburgh then went on to win the championship in seven games.

Over-all, the Pirates voted 31 full shares from their pot of $627,237.11 of the 1971 World Series and championship series receipts. They went to 23 players, Manager Danny Murtaugh, five coaches, trainer Tony Bartirome and clubhouse manager John Hallahan.

They also voted several smaller shares, but did not give any money to their ground crew. The ground crew had received a full share to split last year when the Pirates won the National League's East Division title.

Meanwhile, the Orioles also voted 31 full shares of $13,906.45 from their total earnings of $470,427.84. They gave a one-tenth share to Jay Mazzone, their crippled batboy whose hands were burned off in a childhood accident. The 16-year-old Mazzone retired after the 1971 season. He had held the batboy's job for four years.

Another interesting note in the team breakdown of awards, as released by Kuhn, was that the Boston Red sox gave a full share of $294.31 to the Jimmy Fund for cancer research. The Red Sox finished third in the American League East.

Turkey Season Closes Saturday

In the northcentral part of the state, the season will reopen for four days on Wednesday, Nov. 24, coming to a final close on Saturday, Nov. 27.

Sportsmen are again reminded that in the northcentral section of the commonwealth, turkeys may not be taken during the two-day bear season, Nov. 22 and 23.

Frazier Guns Down Phoenix, 112-111

NEW YORK (AP) — Walt Frazier poured in a season-high 39 points, including 16 in the final period, as the New York Knicks stormed back from a 19-point deficit for a 112-111 victory over the Phoenix Suns in a National Basketball Association game Tuesday night.

Braves Scalp Royals, 102-98

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The Buffalo Braves wiped out a 14-point deficit in the second half and beat the Cincinnati Royals 102-98 in the National Basketball Association Tuesday night.

Randy Smith's 18-foot corner shot in the last minute wrapped up the victory for the Braves.

Bulls Lose Lead; Rally Back, 95-87

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Bulls lost an 18-point lead early in the third quarter Tuesday night, but came back in the final period behind a balanced attack to outlast the Seattle Super Sonics 95-87 in a National Basketball Association game.

Rookie's Shooting Gives Bullets Win

BALTIMORE (AP) — Rookie Phil Chenier's uncontested layup with 23 seconds to play and clutch free throw with 11 seconds left pushed the Baltimore Bullets to a 110-107 come-from behind National Basketball Association victory over the Houston Rockets Tuesday night.

Rangers Stay Busy In Trading Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Rangers completed their second big National Hockey League trade in two days today, sending forwards Dave Balon, Wayne Connelly and Ron Stewart to the Vancouver Canucks in exchange for defenseman Gary Doak and forward Jim Wiste.

Connelly, a right winger, was obtained Monday in a seven-player transaction with the St. Luis Blues. St. Louis also sent forwards Gene Carr and Jim Lorentz to New York and received forwards Jack Egers and Mike Murphy, defenseman Andre Dupont plus a player to be named later.

Doak and Wiste are both 25 years old. The defenseman suffered a broken ankle bone in the preseason and played only five games for Vancouver. Wiste, who played for the University of Denver and briefly for the Chicago Black Hawks of the NHL, has split this season between Rochester of the American League and Seattle of the Western League.

Balon, 33 year-old left wing, was the Rangers' top goal-getter last season with 36. He has scored four goals in 16 games this year. Connelly, 31, had five goals for St. Louis. Stewart, a 39-year-old right wing is a 19-year big league vegeran who was optioned to Providence of the American League before the start of the current campaign.

"Both deals," said Emile Francis, the Rangers' general manager-coach, "were made toward improving the Rangers at the present time and also insuring a very strong future for the club. We have obtained several outstanding youngsters with considerable talent."

Carr, a center, scored 38 goals and had 104 points for the Flin Flon Bombers last season and had three goals in 14 games for St. Louis this year. Lorentz, a member of Boston's Stanley Cup Champions two years ago, had 19 goals for St. Louis last year.

Egers scored seven goals in 60 games as a Ranger rookie last year. Dupont, 22, is a bruising defenseman in his second year as a pro while Murphy was the Central League's rookie of the year in 1970-71 after scoring 24 coals for Omaha.

The Rangers are in first place while Vancouver is tied for fifth in the circuit's East Division.

Tulsa Computer Says Oklahoma Is Number One

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Note to Nebraska and Oklahoma football fans: It's all been decided and Oklahoma's the national champion.

Who says so?

A computer, which picked Oklahoma to win that big Thanksgiving Day showdown 39-33.

A Tulsa television station, KTUL-TV, fed all the statistics it had available into a computer which came up with the sixpoint Sooner victory.

The projection, on work done by Camptran Computer Corp., showed Oklahoma gaining 382 yards compared with 398 for Nebraska. It said Oklahoma would record 18 first downs to Nebraska's 23.

The game will be played at Oklahoma's home field—and the computer decided that gave the Sooners a three-point advantage.

Sheffield Boosters Obtain Dave Giusti For Annual Fete

Sheffield's 12th annual Booster Banquet is a little less than two months away, and already the group is busily engaged in preparing its Saturday, January 15th program to be bigger and better than the previous eleven.

To make sure of that, the Boosters have already procured the services of the Pittsburgh Pirates' ace reliever, Dave Giusti as a speaker. Giusti, a native of Syracuse, N.Y., was the team's workhorse in appearing in 58 games, working 86 innings and picking up 30 saves during the past season.

The 31-year-old relief specialist was the recipient of the Fireman of the Year for the National League award presented by the Sporting News. Last season he was second.

Over the past two years, Giusti was credited with either winning or saving 70 of the team's 186 victories (38 per cent) for the 1970-71 Eastern Division Champions.

His heroics in the championship playoffs, where he was credited with three saves, and in the World Series, another save, aren't included in the above statistics. In seven appearances against the Giants and Orioles, Giusti pitched a total of 10 2-3 scoreless innings, yielding just four hits.

The team's player representative, Dave makes his home in Pittsburgh with his wife Ginny and their two daughters, Laura (6) and Cynthia (2).

The Boosters hope to release other names in the near future, possibly a big surprise or two. An old favorite, Tom Gorman, National League umpire, will more than likely, put in an appearance again.

Tickets for the fete will go on sale in the near future.

'Stork' Keys Colt Win

NEW YORK (AP) — "He's got to the point now," Baltimore assistant coach Hank Bullough was saying about Ted Hendricks, "where he's a completely new dimension in linebackers."

Hendricks also got the point — or, more technically, prevented the one — that provided the Colts with their tense 14-13 victory Sunday over the New York Jets.

That, plus his timely tackles—he was in on 11 of them—and a key interception, earned Hendricks the selection Tuesday as The Associated Press Defensive Player of the Week in the National Football League.

The 6-foot-7, 215-pounder got the nod over Minnesota Vikings safeties Charlie West and Paul Krause.

The point that made the difference never came because of Hendricks' big fist. The Jets had just scored and soccerstyle kicker Bobby Howfield came on for the conversion that would have tied the game.

"I tried to go inside on the first conversion" when New York had taken a 7-0 lead "but that didn't work," he recalled. "On this one, Dave Herman went over to try and help block Bubba Smith, figuring I'd go with him again.

"I didn't. I went outside instead of inside, and it worked." He charged through the gaping hole in the Jets' line, stuck out a fist "and the ball just hit it. I wasn't even stretched out or up in the air or anything."

The defending champion Colts still had the lead and never relinquished it, remaining in the battle with the Miami Dolphins for supremacy in the American Conference East.

Hendricks, whose fumble recovery and 31-yard gallop for a touchdown a week ago broke a 10-10 tie and put the Colts ahead to stay in their 24-17 Monday night victory over Los Angeles, also picked off a pass that put them back in the game against the Jets.

It was his fifth interception of the year, coming as New York drove into Baltimore territory. He nabbed the pass and returned it 10 yards to midfield, then turned the ball over to Johnny Unitas, who marched the Colts 50 yards to a touchdown and a 7-7 tie.

"The Stork," as the lean, long-legged linebacker is known, "poses an altogether different problem for quarterbacks because of his height and jumping ability," Bullough said. "I think he's playing as good as any outside linebacker in pro football."

The assistant coach pointed out that when the Colts drafted Hendricks off the University of Miami campus, their No. 1 choice in 1969, they intended to keep him at his collegiate position of defensive end with the idea of adding weight, perhaps 25 pounds, to his lanky frame.

So they poured food supplements into him—and he wound up losing two pounds. They shifted Hendricks to linebacker, and it's been paying off ever since.

West, starting for the first time in place of injured Karl Kassulke, intercepted a pair of Green Bay passes, one of them in his own end zone which he raced back to the 50-yard line, setting up a field goal.

And Krause crushed a pair of scoring threats, coming up with his 50th career interception on the Minnesota three-yard line, then later pouncing on a fumble on the Minnesota one. The defensive plays and the field goal were, as it turned out, the game as the Vikings beat the Packers 3-0.

Sullivan's Performance Earns College Laurels

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Vince Dooley has his comic strip characters mixed up—about as mixed up as Auburn's Pat Sullivan had Dooley's Georgia pass defenders Saturday.

Sullivan completed 14 of 24 passes for 248 yards and four touchdowns in leading the unbeaten Tigers to a 35-20 victory over the previously undefeated Bulldogs.

For that performance, the 6-foot, 190-pound senior quarterback from Birmingham, Ala., was named national college Back of the Week by The Associated Press.

"Sullivan was a superman having a super day and Terry Beasley (four catches for 130 yards and two touchdowns) is a boy wonder," said Dooley. "It will have to be proven to me if there is a better combination than those two."

Vince, Vince, it's Batman and boy wonder, not Superman.

"Well," mused Dooley, "if youre going to get beat by big plays, at least we got beat by the best big playmaker around. We tried to mix up the coverage. We double-covered some, but Sullivan is a heckuva scrambler. He just kept holding on back there and it's the longest our defensive backs have ever had to stay with receivers."

Sullivan even caused Auburn's Shug Jordan to wax poetic.

"It was Southern football in all of its glory in an Indian summer in all of its glory," he recited, adding, "I feel a little poetic.

"Sullivan is the greatest player I've ever been around. He has withstood the test of time. If he ever played a better game I don't remember it, and he's played lots of great ones. He seems to play his best in the biggest games."

Sullivan threw a 34-yard scoring pass to Beasley in the first period and a 15-yarder to Dick Schmalz that put the Tigers ahead to stay 21-14 in the second quarter. After Georgia pulled to within 21-20 in the final period, Sullivan teamed up with Beasley on a 70-yard strike only 22 seconds later and iced it with a five-yard flip to Schmaltz.

Sullivan had to be great to beat out Colorado running back Charlie Davis for Back of the Week honors. All Davis did was gain 342 yards, just eight short of the all-time record

Ali, Mathis Square Off Tonight In Astrodome

HOUSTON (AP) — Buster Mathis, fighting for the first time in 2½ years, takes his turn Wednesday night with Muhammad Ali, who has made up for his own exile from the ring with a flurry of activity during the past year.

They will meet in a scheduled 12-rounder in the Astrodome, scheduled to start at 10:50 EST.

For Mathis, who has won 29 pro fights against two losses, it will be the first fight since he lost a 12-round decision to Jerry Quarry in New York March 24, 1969.

Ali has fought four times and engaged in numerous exhibitions since he ended a 3½-year boxing exile due to military draft troubles by stopping Quarry in three rounds in Atlanta Oct. 26, 1970.

Ali said after he lost to heavyweight champion Joe Frazier, in his only defeat in 33 pro fights, that he would keep busy until he won the title again and he is expected to sign soon for a planned Dec. 26 fight against German Jurgen Blin in Zurich, Switzerland.

The former heavyweight champion generally is expected to handle Mathis as easily as he did Jimmy Ellis, whom he stopped in 12 rounds in his first fight after losing to Frazier.

In fact, Ali is such a prohibitive favorite that no betting line has been established.

The fight will follow a scheduled 10-round heavyweight bout between George Chuvalo of Canada and Cleveland Williams of Houston, which also will be shown on closed circuit television over 106 locations in the United States and Canada.

The fight also will be beamed to 27 foreign countries.

Penn-Pitt Rivalry Renewed Saturday

Penn State's football team puts its national ranking and prestige on the line against traditional rival Pittsburgh this Saturday at Pitt Stadium.

"Our games with Pitt are always a matter of pride," says Penn State coach Joe Paterno. "Most of the players on both teams know each other and there is a great rivalry between the two teams."

Penn State, one of the nation's top-ranked teams and a contender for a post-season bowl berth, takes a 9-0 record into the game. Pitt is 3-6 so far this season.

"It sounds like that old cliche about throwing the records out the window, but it is that kind of game," Paterno says. "We're not thinking about anything but Pitt."

Paterno was pleased with his team's 35-3 win over North Carolina State last week.

"We played well," the Lion coach says. "Any time you have five turnovers in a half and still win 35-3, you have to be pleased. This team is getting better all the time. It may go down as the greatest team in Penn State history before it's all over."

This year's team already has earned its position as the best offensive team in Penn State history. Led by record-breaking halfback Lydell Mitchell, the Lions have rewritten the record book. The 1971 team has the school records for points (388), total offense (4,092 yards) and rushing yards 2,852). The Lions are averaging 454.7 yards and 43.1 points per game while allowing only 250.4 yards and 9.1 points per contest.

Mitchell, the Lions' premier running back, now holds 11 individual Penn State records and two national marks. Mitchell's 25 touchdowns surpassed the total of 24 by Art Luppino of Arizona in 1954. His 23 touchdowns by rushing ties the NCAA mark held by Steve Owens of Oklahoma (1969) and Bob Gaiters of New Mexico State (1960).

Mitchell has now gained 1,303 yards in 208 carries, an average of 6.3 yards per attempt. He also is second on the team in pass receiving with 11 catches for 118 yards.

Quarterback John Hufnagel continues to direct the Lion offense almost to perfection. The slim junior has completed 62.1 per cent of his passes (59 of 95) for 797 yards and seven touchdowns. He has been intercepted only three times all season.

Fullback Franco Harris returned to action against N.C. State after missing the Maryland game with a slight leg injury. Harris gained 90 yards in 14 carries to boost his season total to 552 yards. He is fourth on Penn State's all-time rushing list.

Charlie Zapiec, the Lions' defensive captain, was the leader of the team's defensive effort against N.C. State. Zapiec, a 220-pound outside linebacker, intercepted two passes to set up Penn State touchdowns and broke up another pass in the end zone.

"Zapiec is an outstanding linebacker and he had a great game against North Carolina State," Paterno says. "He made the big play for us when we needed it."

Paterno says the Lions will need another good defensive effort against Pitt, a team that has averaged over 20 points per game.

The Panthers have a balanced attack. Fullback Lou Julian has rushed for 360 yards and his replacement Paul Felinczak has 258. Tailback John Chatman is the third man with 243 yards.

Senior Dave Havern and junior John Hogan have shared the quarterbacking duties in recent games. Havern has completed 78 of 154 passes for 920 yards and seven touchdowns. Hogan has hit 26 of 49 attempts for 283 yards and a TD.

Pitt holds a 35-32 lead in the series between the two teams. There have been three ties. Penn State has dominated the rivalry in recent years, winning the last five meetings and nine of the last 12.

Conigliaro Placed On Disabled List

ANAHEIM (AP) — The California Angels announced Tuesday that they had agreed to place outfielder Tony Conigliaro on the disabled list and pay his full estimated $70,000-plus salary for the last season.

The action settles a grievance filed against them by the former Boston Red Sox star, Harry Dalton, the Angels' new general manager, said.

Conigliaro, 26, had quit July 10 following a 20-inning loss by the Angels to the Oakland Athletics. He was hitting only .222 at the time, after 74 games, with four homers and 15 runs batted in. Subsequently, he said he should be placed on the disabled list and filed a grievance with the Major League Players Association.

Conigliaro's disability grew out of an injury to his left eye after he was beaned by former Angel pitcher Jack Hamilton in Boston on Aug. 18, 1967. He sat out the entire 1968 season, then made a sensational comeback by hitting 20 homers and knocking in 82 runs during 1969 and clouting 36 homers with 116 runs batted in 1970. He was then traded to the Angels.

Dalton said the decision to grant disability was based on examinations by two doctors who determined that a "blind spot in his left eye had worsened" in the last year. A spokesman said that since Conigliaro had announced his retirement, it wasn't contemplated that his disability status would extend beyond the close of last season.

Conigliaro couldn't be reached for comment, and was believed to be in Boston.

Jabbar Opening Big Advantage In NBA Scoring

NEW YORK (AP) — Milwaukee's towering center, Kareem Jabbar, poured in 46 points against Philadelphia Sunday night, the highest total of the National Basketball Association 1970-71season, to raise his league-leading scoring average to 33.1 points per game, according to weekly statistics released today.

The 7-foot-2 Jabbar, who led the Bucks to the NBA championship last season, scored 44, 33, 31, 29 and 49 points in his five outings last week. Trailing Jabbar in the scoring race is Lou Hudson of Atlanta, 27.7; Bob Love of Chicago, 26.8; Gail Goodrich of Los Angeles, 26.1, and Jimmy Walker of Detroit, 25.2.

Jabbar also leads the NBA in field goal percentage, .618, and is second to Wilt Chamberlain of Los Angeles in rebounding average at 16.6 to Chamberlain's 19.7.

Baltimore's Jack Marin leads the league in free throw shooting at .904, while Seattle player-coach Len Wilkens is tops in assists with a 9.0 average.

— FOR TWO DAYS ONLY —

Bear Season Opens Monday

Pennsylvania's big game hunters will have two days, Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 22 and 23, in which they can harvest black bears this year.

The Game Commission's Northcentral Field Division supervisor, Ray Morningstar, says that bears have been sighted throughout the division. In some sections, he reports, there are excellent numbers of bruins, while elsewhere bears have been sighted in normal numbers.

While there aren't as many of the species as in 1967 and 1968, Morningstar feels there is an adequate population, and he expects a good harvest, especially if a tracking snow should develop prior to and during the two-day season.

In northwestern Pennsylvania, Supervisor Lester Sheaffer reports that there appears to be a normal supply of bears. There is lots of feed, he says, and the bruins are scattered, showing up in areas where they have not been seen before. He expects a good bear harvest in his division.

Northeastern Pennsylvania Supervisor N. J. Molski says there has not been a shortage of bears and he looks for a good season. Bruins are being sighted in the northeast in areas where they were not available before, and there are several locations where bears have concentrated in good numbers. Molski believes that favorable weather conditions would produce a good harvest.

In 1970 there was no bear season due to an apparent shortage of the species in the prime range, the northcentral part of the state, while a two-day season in 1969 produced a harvest of 295.

In the past, weather has often been an important factor in the annual harvest. A ground covering of snow increases the hunter's tracking chances and provides contrast, making it easier to spot the game. On the other hand, severely cold temperatures and or heavy snow can drive bruins into early hibernation, making them unavailable to hunters.

A hunter may legally take only one bear per year in Pennsylvania, and hunting parties of five or more are restricted to one bear per party this year.

Cub bears are protected by law and are not legal targets. Although the only positive way to determine a bear's age is by examination of the teeth, the difference between cubs and adult bears can usually be measured by body size alone in the wild. Most cubs weigh less than 100 pounds, and to a hunter don't appear to be much larger than a medium-size dog.

Game Commission officials appeal to all bear hunters to take every safety precaution. Wearing of a black fur cap and a black leather jacket can't be recommended, since some similarly-attired hunters in the past have been shot in mistake for bears. Fluorescent orange clothing, at least a cap and a vest, should be worn.

Tendonitis Sidelines NY's Reed

NEW YORK (AP) — Center Willis Reed of the New York Knicks, suffering from tendonitis of the left knee, was placed on the injured list Tuesday which means he will miss at least the next five games.

Reed will be eligible to play again Nov. 27 against Chicago at Madison Square Garden. A spokesman for the National Basketball Association club said Reed would undergo a weightlifting and rest program for about two weeks under the direction of Dr. Andrew Patterson, club physician.

Reed has played in only two of the Knicks' last seven games for a total of 35 minutes.

SENIORS REHEARSE PLAY

The villain makes a pass at Mama, in a tense garret scene in the early nineteenth century melodrama, "The Drunkard," to be presented by Youngsville high school seniors next Friday night, in the school auditorium. Bill Wilbert plays the "baddie" (he is also responsible for technical direction) and Joan Papalia (center) is the mother, whose troubles also include the drunkard of the title—he is her husband, Jane Dailey, left, is her daughter. The play, which has many versions, was staged in about 1885 in the old Grandin Opera House at Tidioute, and is enjoying a new popularity with modern audiences. (Photo by Rhodes)

Youngsville Residents Face Additional Real Estate Tax

Although a tax increase is in the works, no Youngsville borough residents availed themselves of the opportunity to examine the proposed borough budget for 1972 operations, during the ten days that it was posted for inspection in the borough office, as required by law.

The budget was presented at the November 1 council meeting. An addition of five mills to the current 12 mills real estate tax was proposed at that time, to yield the necessary income.

In an executive session, council decided the tax increase could be reduced to 4 mills, by eliminating one employe from the public works department.

The revised budget will be presented for adoption at the next council meeting, on Monday, December 6. It shows an estimated income of $134,327, and expenditures of $133,932, in the general account.

The budget was removed from public display yesterday. However, residents may discuss the borough's affairs with borough manager George Probst.

A telephone call, to establish a mutually convenient time, would be advisable.

APPROVES GAL GUARDS

OCEAN CITY, Md. (AP)—Because of a shortage of male lifeguards in this ocean resort town, Mayor Harry Kelley wants girls considered for the job next summer.

"We'll be glad to test any girl applicant," Capt. Robert Craig, head of the beach patrol, told the mayor.

"In fact, I'll see to it personally."

Legion Wants Used Toys For Area Needy Children

The Youngsville Halgren-Wilcox American Legion post will welcome gifts of new, used or repairable toys, any time now, for their annual collection in behalf of needy children. The project is one that has been going on for more years than anybody remembers. In cooperation with the Youngsville Kiwanis Club, Legionnaires and Legion Auxiliary members pack many dozens of boxes of groceries to go along with the toys on Christmas Eve, to homes where the Christmas cheer might otherwise be on the slim side.

This year, toys are more than ever needed, because there are none in reserve from last year. The legionnaires will mend any used toys that need it. Auxiliary members will dress dolls. Contributions may be left at the Legion home, 10 North Main street, Youngsville, as soon as possible, to allow time for needed work, and wrapping. Auxiliary president Mrs. Joan Sheddy will be pleased to supply additional information. (Tel. 563-9604.)

Children's Books To Be On Display

Youngsville public library will have a display of new children's books in the window of the Pennsylvania Bank, East Main street, this week, in observance of National Children's Book Week. On Friday, November 28, a special vacation story hour will be held, starting at 2:30 p.m., in the children's room at the Library's West Main street premises. Miss Barbara Wroblewski, a library science student at Clarion state college, will be the storyteller. Children from kindergarten age through fourth grade may attend.

School Principal Tells School Objectives To PTA

Gordon Sutton, principal of Irvine elementary school, summarized the school's educational objectives and explained the results sought at each grade level, to parents who attended Open House at the school Monday night. He spoke during an informal PTA meeting in the cafeteria, which followed room visitations. Many students accompanied the large turnout of parents. The PTA provided special refreshments for the children, as well as for the adults.

Earlier in the day, the Rev. Jimmie Davis, of Boys' Jim Clubs of America, presented a special assembly program for the students, featuring music, magic and philosophy. The assembly was a PTA-sponsored project.

On Thursday, November 18, the PTA will sponsor a skating party starting at 7 p.m. at the Warren Rollarena. A cake skate will be a part of the program. Winners of the cake skate at the October party were Danny Westfall and Nancy Cowles.

Other recent PTA activities have included sponsorship of a UNICEF drive which raised $113.50 for the international children's benevolent organization; and a Halloween party for the Irvine students. The party was highlighted by a fancy dress grand parade outdoors under spotlights.

Prizewinners, for funniest, prettiest, ugliest and most original costumes, in that order, by classrooms, were as follows: pre-school: Marion Clint Johnson, Theresa Carey, Gregory Etter, Carrie Zock; 1st grade: Gary Lindgren, Kim Wise, Kirk Hummer, Cynthia Earl; grade 2, Scott Gustafson, Beth Rudolph, Kim Beardsley, Donna Bower; grade 3, Lisa Skinner, Gail Slagle, Jeff Hummer, Linda Bogenreif; grade 4, Laura Theuret, Barb Lindgren, Laurie Harlan, Diane Coan; grade 5, Linda Walters, Donna Zurcher, Dan Darling, Clay Campbell; grade 6, John Pollow, Lisa Green, John Martin, Bobby Mack.

The PTA plans to give a Christmas gift to each student, in continuation of an annual custom. On Thursday this week, first graders will spend the morning on a field trip to Youngsville municipal and business premises.

Garden Club Members Hear Richard Brown

Richard Brown, RD 1, Youngsville, entertained Brokenstraw Valley Garden Club members at their meeting on Thursday at the National Forge clubhouse, with slide photographs of Germany. He took the pictures while serving for two years in the U.S. Army at Mannheim, Germany.

Of special interest to his audience were scenes on both sides of the Berlin Wall, and views of parks and formal gardens.

Following a report from a nominating committee, presented by Mrs. F. J. Henson, the club elected Harvey Horn president for 1972. Others elected were Mrs. Andrew Randinelli, vice president; Mrs. M. Finlan and Mrs. Warren Jones, secretaries; and Mr. Ronald Rieder, treasurer. They will take office in January.

Music Boosters Schedule Meeting

The Music Council of Youngsville high school, the student organization which promotes music department projects in cooperation with the Youngsville Music Boosters, announces that a special meeting will be held on Thursday, November 18 at 8 p.m. in the band room. All Music Boosters members, and any other persons interested in the school's music program, are urged to attend and help plan activities for the coming months. County Zoning Hearing Board Acts On Thirteen Cases Tuesday

The Warren County Zoning Hearing Board agreed Tuesday to let the Scandia Store owners relocate their gas pumps because of a hardship caused by roadway construction in the area. They also denied a Pine Grove Township resident the right to build a horse shelter and turned down a Florida couple in their bid to put a mobile home in North Warren.

Edward J. Brennan, a sales representative for United Refining Company told the board that the gas pumps on the west side of Scandia Store have to be relocated because highway crews have lowered the roadbed and made access to the pumps hazardous where they now exist.

Brennan and Albert W. Lauffenburger, the store owner, said they want to move the pumps to the south side of the building, facing the Scandia-Onoville rd. They proposed that the pumps be placed only 18 feet from the highway right-of-way—a distance that will be nearly 50 feet from the edge of the pavement.

The zoning ordinance requires that such structures be at least 50 feet from the right-of-way. The board felt, however, that since there is no other logical alternative and since the pumps are a necessity to the sparsely populated Scandia area there is ample reason to approve a variance. They okayed the 18-foot distance unanimously.

They turned down the request of Mrs. Frances L. Kalfas of Howard rd. in Pine Grove Township to build a horse shelter on her property.

Although her one-acre lot is in an agricultural area Mrs. Kalfas lacks the proper yard widths for her proposed shelter. She asked for yard variances but was turned down because she failed to show sufficient hardship.

The request of David Kerr of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. to place a mobile home on North State st. in North Warren was defeated due to the lack of sufficient information.

Richard Smith, a spokesman for Kerr, told the board that the mobile home would be on a "permanent foundation" but admitted that he did not know exactly what type of foundation Kerr had in mind.

Neighbors on either side of the property in question, Mrs. Lois Scott and Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Hultberg, objected to the mobile home but the board turned it down due to the lack of sufficient information about the type of foundation the home would have.

County Solicitor William Mervine said that if a mobile home applicant can show that he is planning an acceptable permanent foundation there is nothing the board can do to turn it down despite the objections.

In other activity the board okayed two sign requests, five mobile home applications, an addition at the Warren Steel Company and a building request from the Pine Grove Cemetery Association.

They also tabled a mobile home request from Dennis O. Fiscus of Yankee Bush rd. because of a question of lot ownership and the absence of a sewage permit.

Melvin Cole, a partner in Warren Steel Company, said the firm is planning a 20-foot by 140-foot addition to their existing plant. No one objected to the construction of the building, although several neighbors have objected to excavation Warren Steel has undertaken to make room for the structure.

Mervine said the excavation has no relationship to the question before the board and the addition was approved.

Ralph Swanson of the Pine Grove Cemetery Association told the board that their current storage facility and office building is setting on purchased gravesites. The new building will be placed adjacent to East st. ext. at the edge of the Cemetery.

Signs were approved for two businesses in business-transitional zones: Devore's Outdoor Products at 901 Market st. ext. and Warren Truck Service, Route 6 in Stoneham. Both signs were below the 75-square-foot limit dictated in the zoning regulations.

Mobile Home permits were granted to Norman D. Jefferson of 676 Follett Run rd., Hans J. Block of the Lander-Jamestown rd., Sugar Grove, Ward E. Lauffenburger Jr. of Cole Hill rd. and Thomas Eaton of Chapman Dam rd.

A two-year extension was granted to Nancy Clapp for a mobile home on the Six Mile rd. near Tiona.

All were granted unanimously by the board except the Ward Lauffenburger request. Board member Arnold Wrhen abstained from voting while the rest of the board decided to grant Lauffenburger a front yard variance and the right to put up his home.

Water And Sewer Plan Still Needs 8 Okays

Eight Warren County municipalities have not yet okayed the county's water and sewer plan, according to John Grandinetti, state health officer.

In September the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources required that each township and borough in Warren County adopt the county water and sewer plan or come up with their own proposal by Nov. 15. Nineteen of the county's 27 municipalities approved the plan before the deadline but eight did not. Grandinetti said Tuesday that most of the tardy municipalities have not acted because they still have questions about the comprehensive county plan.

He said "as far as we're concerned the Nov. 15 deadline still stands." He did indicate, however, that his office would wait until early December before reporting the townships or boroughs that have not yet approved the plan to the state Attorney General's office.

"We'll try to afford these municipalities every chance we can to clear up problems they might have concerning the plan," Grandinetti said.

He pointed out that most township and borough governments meet around the first of the month. Grandinetti said he would wait until after these meetings to notify Harrisburg of any municipality that has not met the requirements outlined in Act 537, the Pennsylvania Sewage Facilities Act.

In the meantime, he said he would try to get in touch with municipal officials in each of the eight governments to answer their questions. The eight are Sugar Grove Borough, Bear Lake Borough, Youngsville Borough, Brokenstraw Township, Glade Township, Mead Township, Triumph Township and Sheffield Township.

Grandinetti said that at least one of the local governments, and maybe more, could qualify under Act 537 without approving the county plan.

He said that Mead Township recently completed a detailed sewage feasibility study -- a document that normally follows the regional plan. The feasibility study may, according to Grandinetti, fulfill the requirements of the Sewage Facilities Act.

"I anticipate that the rest of the municipalities will approve the plan after we answer their questions," he added.

State Employes May Now Get Delayed Raises

HARRISBURG (AP) — The approximate 105,000 state employes will be getting their pay raises held up by Phase 1 of the federal wage-price freeze, according to the Shapp administration.

The basic increase will be 5 per cent, but a number of workers — mainly in the lowest pay categories — will receive 10, 15 or even 20 per cent hikes.

The raise will cost taxpayers $40 million. Of this total, $20 million comes from general state revenues, and another $20 million from motor license fees. The latter figure pays salaries of Department of Transportation employes.

The increases were budgeted for 1971-72, but then were caught in the freeze.

Ronald G. Lench, secretary of administration, said the raises were not inconsistent with regulations of the new federal Pay Board. The board has said wage increases should average 5.5 per cent.

"According to regulations of the Pay Board the larger increases will be allowed," Lench said.

He said that since the last general pay increase in the state the cost of living has risen 10 per cent.

About 75,000 Commonwealth workers will receive the basic 5 per cent increase, 17,000 will receive 10 per cent, 10,000 will get 15 per cent and 1,500 will receive 20 per cent.

The public is welcome to attend this final meeting of the year.

TITUSVILLE—A 55-year-old Titusville man was pronounced dead of a self-inflicted shot gun wound Tuesday by Dr. Clarence M. Sonne, deputy coroner of Crawford County.

Dead is John Herbert Stevens of RD 1, Titusville who shot himself sometime between 11:30 a.m. and 1:45 p.m. Tuesday.

Miners In Three States Are Balking At Contract

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A back-to-work trickle among western Pennsylvania's 20,000 soft coal miners was expected to broaden steadily as United Mine Workers leaders seek to bolster confidence in the union's new three-year pact with the bituminous coal industry.

Of more than 100,000 miners on strike in some 20 states at the height of the month-and-ahalf long strike, only those in Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia appeared balking en masse at a return to work.

In this region, and probably the other areas, the main hang-up appeared to be the miners' concern over what the federal Pay Board would do in regard to the new pact, which provides raises well above the mandated government minimum, and if provisions of the pact would be retroactive.

Also, some miners say they simply don't understand the language of the contract, while still others expressed concern over some of the fringe benefits, particularly that dealing with sick pay.

Local union officials were hustling Tuesday to conduct meetings with the rank-and-file in an attempt to clear up any questions. More meetings were scheduled for later Tuesday and Wednesday.

On Monday, the first full day under the new contract, UMW district leaders were urging their men to go back to work immediately, but the miners were slow in responding.

Some took votes and decided to return to the pits on the midnight shift Monday, but in at least three instances, pickets blocked their move. Workers at Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp.'s Vesta No. 4 and No. 5 mines in southwestern Pennsylvania were turned back by pickets, and to the east, in Cambria County, picket lines greeted miners returning to Bethlehem Steel's Ehrenfeld mine.

The extended strike seemed seated most firmly in the rich soft coal fields of southwestern Pennsylvania, home of a dissident group which has been opposing the current UMW leadership.

More than 6,000 men normally work those pits, but as of Tuesday none was reported on the job.

One of the few mining operations known to be working in this half of the state was the Florence Mining Co.'s shafts near New Florence along the Westmoreland, Indiana-Cambria county border.

That mining complex feeds a huge electric generating station near the town of Huff, known as the Conemaugh Steam Electric Generating Station.

Other major mines in that area — Barnes & Tucker Co. in northern Cambria County and Indiana County, Rochester & Pittsburgh Coal Co. in Indiana County, Bethlehem Mines in Cambria County and North American in Westmoreland and Indiana counties were reported still down Tuesday afternoon.

In Butler County, Union Carbide's Fawn Mine, where some 90 miners work, was scheduled to resume operations on the afternoon shift Monday. And, more than 230 miners at Republic Steel's nearby Russellton mine were expected back at midnight.

The coal pinch was beginning to be felt by some of the power companies, which recently have grown to rely heavily on coal for producing electricity.

Companies comprising the Allegheny Power System — West Penn Power Co., Monongahela Power and Potomac Edison— issued a joint plea Monday for customers to eliminate non-essential uses of electricity.

The companies said coal reserves were growing dangerously low.

At the outset of the strike, spokesmen for the utility companies had estimated on-hand coal reserves would last them anywhere from 50 to 90 days.

The strike, at least in this area, went into its 42nd day Tuesday.

Philadelphia Police Chief Denies Overall Corruption

PHILADELPHIA (AP)— Responding to a newspaper report of widespread corruption in his department, Police Commissioner Joseph F. O'Neill insisted Tuesday that his department "will come through this crisis" with its reputation undamaged.

But he said he would fire any policeman convicted of a crime.

O'Neill's statement came in response to a copyrighted story in Tuesday's Philadelphia Inquirer that reported results of a three-month investigation had "produced evidence of widespread police corruption."

Meanwhile, Dist. Atty. Arlen Specter disclosed Tuesday his office and the police department were investigating charges by a dismissed patrolman of police payoffs to policemen by gambling figures.

O'Neill said, in apparent reference to the Inquirer's copyrighted story: "When charges of police corruption are leveled against a few men, it is regrettable that 7,600 police officers are smeared."

"We guarantee," he continued, "that this department will overcome this crisis—and maintain our reputation, our dignity and the confidence of the people of Philadelphia."

The Inquirer said it utilized information from former police officers, FBI wiretaps, interviews with police officers and known bookies, and photographic surveillance during a three-month investigation.

The newspaper said its findings were also corroborated in a 76-page sworn statement made by former Patrolman Carl V. Johnson to two assistant district attorneys.

Johnson, according to the Inquirer, said he received about $90 a month from vice figures from 1967 to this year in return for allowing them "to operate their illegal activities within the district freely, and without fear or arrest."

Johnson, 27, was arrested in early September on narcotics possession charges shortly after a sergeant was charged with selling him heroin. Johnson and five other officers were subsequently dismissed from the police force.

Specter, referring to Johnson's charges, disclosed that witnesses had been called before a special grand jury which is conducting a probe into the city's narcotics traffic.

Cubs Now Have $100 For Lights

Pack 30 Cub Scouts now have about $100 in their fund for new Christmas lighting for downtown Youngsville. They expect to complete their door-to-door canvass next Saturday, but will leave collection cans in local stores throughout the holiday season. They hope to raise at least enough for the purchase of one illuminated street ornament. Residents wishing for more information about the Cub Scouts' efforts, or wanting to donate, may telephone Mrs. James Rose, 308 College street, Youngsville, 563-9588.

3 Seek Permits To Remove Sand And Gravel From River

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is asking interested parties to make known any objections they may have regarding three applications to remove sand and gravel from the Allegheny River.

Warren General Concrete Products Corp. wants to dredge the right channel of the Allegheny at Mead Island, Starbrick, between 184.7 and 185.5 miles above the head of the river. The Warren dredging would remove sand and gravel to a depth of 35 feet.

Oil City Sand and Gravel has applied for an extension of time to their permit to dredge the river between mile 126.4 and mile 131.9, a five and a half mile section of the Allegheny from French Creek to Reno. The applicant asks for the right to remove 250,000 tons of sand and gravel yearly.

The Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources certified the two operations as complying with the Water Quality Act of 1970, according to the Engineers.

The third application is being made by Osage Company of Pittsburgh. The firm seeks the right to dredge at seven locations between mile 55 and 71, the last being at East Brady.

The determination as to whether a permit will be issued will be based on an evaluation of all relevant factors including the effect of the proposed work on navigation, fish and wildlife, water quality, economics, conservation aesthetics, recreation, water supply, flood damage protection, ecosystems and, in general, the needs and welfare of the people.

Comments and written statements will be accepted at Pittsburgh District Corps of Engineers, Federal Building, 1000 Liberty ave., Pittsburgh, Pa. 15222, until close of business Dec. 13, 1971, made part of the records and will be considered in determining whether it would be in the best public interest to grant a permit.

Rotary Foundation Work Discussed At Meeting

Neil Culbertson, chairman of Warren Rotary Club Rotary Foundation committee, discussed the function and outreach of the Rotary Foundation of Rotary International at the regular Monday noon meeting at the Blue Manor.

Warren Area High School Senior guests of Rotary were Susan Erickson and Judy Africa.

Rotary Clubs throughout the world are celebrating this week as Rotary Foundation Week. Neil Culbertson explained that the purpose of Rotary Foundation is to foster better understanding and goodwill among nations. This is accomplished chiefly through Rotary Foundation foreign study awards. Fellowships and scholarships are provided for a year of study abroad, in both undergraduate and graduate levels. The awards this year will be for the academic year 1973-1974, which will provide for students now in their Freshman year to study abroad in their Junior year. Graduate fellowships provide for up to one year in another country.

None of the recipients of these fellowships may be Rotarians or sons or daughters of Rotarians.

Another fellowship is provided for those with technical training who are engaged in the field full time, who go to some country where their expertise and know-how can be shared, and they in turn may learn new techniques.

Warren Rotary Club, because of its contributions to Rotary Foundation, is rated as a 600 percent club, calculated in multiples of $10 per member given to the Foundation. Neil Culbertson is a Paul Harris Sustaining Member, because of his generous contributions to the Foundation. A number of members give varying individual sums, and the club makes its contribution in addition.

New Trial Now Sought For Martin

WASHINGTON, Pa. (AP) — Pittsburgh attorney Mark Goldberg filed a motion here Tuesday for a new trial for Aubran W. "Buddy" Martin, the 23-year-old Clevelander condemned to death for the Yablonski family murders.

The boyish-looking Martin was found guilty of three counts of murder in Washington County Court last week and sentenced to die in the electric chair.

In his motion, Goldberg alleged two court errors during the trial, including Judge Charles G. Sweet's charge to the jury, and outlined routine objections to the verdict as opposed to the evidence presented during the 3½ days of testimony.

Goldberg says he'll take the case as far as the U.S. Supreme Court if need be.

Martin and four other persons are accused of murdering United Mine Workers insurgent Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski and his wife and daughter in December 1969 as they slept in their Clarksville, Pa., home.

Oil Used As Medicine By Indians 200 Years Ago

TITUSVILLE, Pa. (AP)— Indians were America's first medicine men to use oil as a cure for all kinds of disease.

This was more than two centuries ago, long before the United States was born. And some even believe it probably was the practice when Columbus discovered the North American continent.

The Indians were the forerunners of the so-called "snake oil" salesmen who foraged the countryside before and after the Civil War, in the rural east and pioneer west, peddling petroleum for rheumatism, headaches, ringworm, tuberculosis, and even veneral disease.

Newly-discovered historical material now reveal petroleum, used medicinally, was gathered by Indians, drop by drop, with feathers swept across the surface of oily springs in Western Pennsylvania.

Only oil clung to the feathers, likely stripped from the wings of an eagle or a wild turkey. The oil was wiped carefully into a jar, and hoarded until sickness struck.

And when the white man started the westward trek, first in small numbers and still in friendship, the Indians used their allegedly healing black grease as an item of barter—sort of primitive pharmacists in the tepee.

The Indians' unusual oil-gathering technique came to light in a 1792 advertisment found in the archives of the Library Company of Philadelphia.

Now that ad is part of the oil history collection of the Drake Well Museum in this tiny town where America's first oil well was drilled.

It is the second major development in the last two years to peel away the mystery of oil's early history. The first was excavation of an ancient oil pit dug by pre-historic Indians to collect petroleum.

Archeologist Sue Ann Curtis of nearby Oil City discovered the pit but didn't know the inhabitants skimmed it out with feathers. The advertisement revealed how the early Indians did the job.

Printed in German and bearing testimonial from users, the ad claimed petroleum would cure just about any disease known to man. It said this "proven medicament" was on sale in many of the then 13 states.

Before the circular was found it long was believed that Samuel Kier of Pittsburgh was the first full-time promoter of oil as a medicine.

He sent wagons from town to town in the early 1850s peddling petroleum. Later Kier turned refiner and marketed oil as an illuminant.

School Employes Return To Work Under Injunction

BUTLER, Pa. (AP)—Some 40 custodial, secretarial and food service employes in the Moniteau School District, Butler County, returned to work Tuesday under a court injunction, after a one-day strike which closed the district's schools.

The employes, members of the Moniteau Association of Service Personnel, struck Monday over a salary dispute.

They, too, struck Monday after a breakdown in negotiations with the school board over the weekend.

Judge Denies Request To Block Investigation

HARRISBURG (AP) — A federal judge denied Tuesday a request for a temporary restraining order to block the state's investigation of mine fire extinguishment contracts.

The plaintiffs, officials of two firms being investigated, contended that they were harassed by publicity surrounding the investigation and by the conduct of the Crime Commission agents.

U. S. District Judge William J. Nealan of Scranton ruled that the evidence neither indicated bad faith on the part of investigators nor did it warrant an injunction.

The plaintiffs are John P. Dixon, president of Dixon Contracting Co. Inc. of Mount Carmel, and John L. Dixon, president of Commonwealth Development Associates of Mount Carmel. Their attorneys also asked that a three-judge panel be convened to rule on the constitutionality of the law creating the Pennsylvania Crime Commission. They claimed the law was "an improper delegation of authority."

Judge Nealan gave the lawyers until Friday to file briefs on this matter.

About a dozen witnesses, including several cabinet officers, were subpoenaed to the hearing but none were asked to testify. Most of the day-long proceedings were conducted in the judge's chambers.

Among the cabinet officers subpoenaed were Atty. Gen. J. Shane Creamer, Environmental Resources Secretary Maurice Goddard and Property and Supplies Secretary Frank Hilton.

Attorneys for the Dixons contended that publicity given by state agencies on the investigation violated the civil rights of their clients. They presented copies of news releases distributed by the Justice Department and other agencies.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: There is this bleached blonde who talked my husband into taking up square dancing. In the close proximity of this fun pastime, she applied a little body English and they went from square dancing to love-making. I could see the sparks flying but I figured it was a harmless flirtation and would soon wear off. So we went on square dancing and I kept fooling myself because he insisted it was wonderful exercise.

Three weeks ago I caught them -- in the station wagon, of all places. It just about killed me. My husband and I had a long talk. He says he doesn't know how it all happened. He doesn't want a divorce or a separation. We've been married nearly 30 years and have never had any trouble. The blonde is also married and is not looking to break up her home either. The problem is that my husband wants to continue square dancing and I say nothing doing. What is your advice? — Billings

DEAR BILL: In view of the circumstances, your husband should be willing to hang up his dancing slippers and get his exercise some other way. As for you -- I suggest that you forget the whole thing and try a little body English of your own.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have always been ashamed and embarrassed because of my handwriting. It looks like the scrawling of a nine-year-old kid. (I'm 27 and married.) For this reason I type all personal notes and sign my name and the date in longhand.

Last week a friend told my mother she thought it was very slobby of me to have typed a condolence message to her sister. I was really hurt. I spent a lot of time and thought composing that letter and to have been criticized for it cut me to the quick. Will you please tell me if it is, as she said, "slobby" to type a personal note — Hen's Scratch Helene

DEAR HEN: A typewritten, but personally signed personal letter makes more sense than a handwritten one which is illegible.

What IS "slobby," however, is to complain to a young woman's mother about a thing like that.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our children were brought up with the idea that everyone who lives in the house does his share of work. It was expected and there was no arguing. Our three oldest who are grown and married seem to have the idea that they can come home to Ma and Pa's and enjoy a free, leisurely vacation.

They arrive with their families and plop themselves on us "for a rest." The grocery bills are double and so is the work. They sleep all morning and I have to run after their kids, bathe and feed them. We still have two children at home and they resent this extra burden. Frankly, so do I. Please tell a very tired mother who is pushing 55 what to do about her problem. — No Martyr In Lancaster

DEAR NO M.: Apparently the job of training your children is not finished. Even married children can learn -- and I suggest you teach them. The lesson is as follows: The Old Homestead is not a hotel. When you return for a vacation you pitch in -- just as you did when you lived here. And you take care of your own kids -- like you do at home. End of lesson.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband has been dead six years. I've worked hard to keep his image bright and shiny. The children believe he was a saint. They are sure our marriage was ideal. The truth is that he was rotten to the core. He started to cheat on me during our honeymoon. When he died I was sharing him with at least three women.

I've started to see a very attractive man who is about 10 years my junior, twice divorced, and a gambler by profession. My children dislike him intensely. The oldest boy said, "Dad would turn over in his grave if he knew."

I'm tempted to haul the skeleton out of the closet and let the children know their dad was a heel and that I'm entitled to whatever happiness I can get. Do I have the right? — OTHER LIFE

DEAR O.L.: No. You are hoping to justify your choice by discrediting your deceased husband in the eyes of your children. It won't work. Forget it. It's a bummer.

Carmen Louise Zaffino became the bride of Joseph Donisi at a noon nuptial mass held November 6, 1971 at St. Joseph Roman Catholic Church, with Father Norman Smith officiating.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel J. Zaffino, 816 Carbon place, Warren. Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Donisi, Jamestown, New York are the parents of the bridegroom.

Mrs. David Hollingshead played traditional organ music for the double ring ceremony, with James Bartholomew as vocalist.

As the bride was escorted to the altar by her father, she was dressed in a gown of white delustered satin in an "A" silhouette. Reembroidered Alencon lace was appliqued on the molded empire bodice and the long camelot sleeves. Scattered medallions highlighted the floor length skirt and a lace border formed the hem and edged the chapel length train.

Marie Pisano, Beaver Falls, Pa. served her cousin as maid of honr. She was dressed in a floor length gown of royal blue velvet with a long sleeved bodice of white Cluny lace. A royal blue velvet bowed bandeau held her butterfly veil. She carried a bouquet of light blue carnations and pink sweetheart roses accented with royal blue velvet ribbons.

The bridesmaids, Susan Piehuta and Raffaela Dominile, cousins of the bride, Virginia Barone, Warren, and Nancy Lewis, West Hickory, Pa., were dressed in gowns similar to that of the honor attendant in white lace with ruby velvet floor length gowns. They carried cascade bouquets of pink carnations and pink sweetheart roses accented by burgundy velvet trim.

Tammy Zaffino, a niece of the bride, was flower girl. She was gowned the same as the maid of honor, and carried a basket of light blue carnations and pink sweetheart roses.

Alfio Contali, Jamestown, N.Y., was best man. Ushers were James Greenland, brother-in-law of the bride; Bruno Zaffino, brother of the bride; Russell Cali and Frank Calmeri, Jamestown, N.Y.

A reception for the couple was held at the Glade Township Fire Hall. Reception aides were Mrs. Angeline Dominile, Mrs. Mary Massa, and Mrs. Patti Colosimo.

The couple is now residing on Crown street, Jamestown, N.Y.

Prenuptial affairs in honor of the bride included a shower given by the bridal party and Lena Piehuta, Josephine Greenland, Rose Curtis and Chris Hollingshead. Another shower was given by Anna Donisi, Lena Donisi, Josephine Contali, and Mary Amordino.

The Society had given the workshop a donation of $200 to buy tools for the newly-established shop, and when Anderson went to a local company to buy the equipment, that company became so intrigued by the project, it donated $125 worth of tools, ranging from screwdrivers to an electric drill, and from wrenches to a power grinder. The company donating the tools has asked to remain anonymous. The workshop is used by patients at the hospital to enable them to raise their work skills with an eye to returning to society with the ability to earn a living. The original check for $200 will be used to buy more tools for the workshop, Anderson said. (Photo - Betz)

For Holiday Happiness - Plan Ahead

It was the night before Christmas and all through the house not a creature was stirring -- mother was exhausted, the children weren't speaking and dad was fuming because his "bargain" tree was already shedding -- and he hadn't even taken it out of the garage!

Sound familiar? While Christmas is anticipated with delight by most families, a "Bah! Humbug!" attitude often sets in as physical and emotional fatigue take their toll. To relieve some of this year's pressures, it's suggested you break the season down to its six major elements and allow planning, as well as execution time, for each. Here's how:

Card lists should be pruned before writing begins -- there are always people on them who are really little more than the ghosts of Christmases past. Begin to write cards in November doing a couple of dozen a few evenings a week. This year you might want to experiment with the "letter" card -- you write a letter bringing people up-to-date on family highlights and have it made into your Christmas card.

Gift -buying, the second element, is easier and faster when it is organized. Purchase a soft notebook and clip a pen to it. Devote two facing pages to each person and on the left side list all their clothing sizes; on the right side list their hobbies, sports, reading and other preferences.

Shopping itself is the most tiring and frustrating part of Christmas so use all the aids you can -- catalogs, telephone, the mails. Divide your shopping forays into two days and two evenings per week -- but don't shop on the evenings of the days you select, or vice versa. In that way you do not continue to drive yourself when you are already under pressure and over-tired.

After each shopping trip, plan a regular rest period. Take a leisurely bath, a couple of aspirin to relieve any headache or aching muscles that might have been caused by the tensions of the day, and lie down for 15 to 20 minutes -- or relax with a cup of hot tea and your feet up.

Gift wrapping is best done as you go along rather than waiting until all your shopping is done. If you wait, chances are that other, equally time-consuming, emergencies will have arisen to demand your attention and cause tensions.

Decorating the house and garden for Christmas is one of the more relaxing elements of Christmas. When shared by all members of the family it can be a festive occasion in itself. You'll find that seasonal music on the record player, cookies and hot chocolate are perfect accompaniments.

Cooking is the final phase of Christmas before the fun of entertaining begins. Figure out what you can cook ahead of time to freeze: puddings, pies, sweet breads, appetizers and home-made fudge, among other things. Cookies, of course, can be made ahead in quantity and stored in air-tight containers. If the children are old enough, cookie decorating can be their responsibility -- it adds to their feeling of involvement and relieves you of some of the details.

By planning these six major elements of Christmas ahead of time, relief is what you'll be feeling when the "night before Christmas" rolls around this year. You'll be relaxed and ready to enjoy Christmas Eve -- amid the great sounds of happy people "stirring" in your home.

R.N.'s Choose PNA As Bargaining Agent

Registered Nurses and other medical personnel employed by the state have proclaimed the Pennsylvania Nurses Association (PNA) as their official collective bargaining representative. The PNA was elected by a 90 per cent majority of the vote.

Ballots began flowing into the Labor and Industry Building, state headquarters of the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, at seven p.m. Nov. 10. The votes were tallied and results announced by midnight. Over 1,500 non-supervisory nurses voted for PNA versus 168 for "No Representative." First-level supervisory nurses elected PNA by a 92 per cent majority.

Kathryn J. Grove, PNA executive director, stated that "PNA has served as spokesman for state employed nurses for many years. Now, however, these nurses have called on us to officially represent them at the bargaining table. We are honored and our entire association is ready to go to work for Commonwealth nurses improving such items as salary scales, working conditions, and benefit and security programs."

The election, conducted under the auspices of the Labor Board, marked the first time in the Commonwealth's history that state employed nurses have had the opportunity to choose a bargaining representative.

Remember Grandma's Spice Cake? This One Will Bring Back Memories

guaranteed to bring back memories

Fragrant aromas! That's what you get when you bake this elegant spice cake. You might even be reminded of the busy, fun-filled hours spent in mother's or grandmother's kitchen when you were growing up. The superb flavor of the spices and the "just right" amount of each spice adds a real mouth-watering goodness to this tender-textured cake.

Cinnamon is the most important baking spice and is one of the best known and most versatile of all spices. It blends well with the ginger, cloves and nutmeg in this recipe, resulting in a real flavor treat.

Elegant Spice Cake

2½ cups sifted cake flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon ginger
¼ teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup soft butter
½ cup light brown sugar, firmly packed
1 cup granulated sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
¼ teaspoon lemon extract
1¼ cups buttermilk
Brown Sugar Frosting, recipe below.

Sift together flour, baking powder, soda, salt, cinnamon, ginger, cloves and nutmeg. Cream butter; add brown sugar, granulated sugar, eggs, vanilla extract and lemon extract. Beat at high speed 5 minutes or until light and fluffy. Scrape bowl often. Add sifted dry ingredients and buttermilk alternately mixing at lowest speed just until smooth, about 1 minute. Pour batter into 2 greased and floured 8-inch layer cake pans. Bake in 350 degree oven 30 minutes or until cake tests done. Cool 5 minutes, then turn layers out onto wire racks. Cool thoroughly. Frost with Brown Sugar Frosting.

Brown Sugar Frosting

2 egg whites, unbeaten
1½ cups light or dark brown sugar, firmly packed
⅓ cup cold water
1 tablespoon light corn syrup
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Combine all ingredients in top of double boiler. Beat 1 minute at high speed. Place over rapidly boiling water and cook, beating constantly, 7 minutes or until peaks form. Remove from heat and continue beating until spreading cosistency is reached. Makes enough to frost tops and sides of two 8- or 9-inch cake layers.

Humidifier Belongs On Inside Wall

According to humidifier experts a portable humidifier should be placed on the first floor near a warm inside wall facing the stairwell. It should be positioned at least six inches from the wall to allow for proper air circulation.

A humidifier placed on an upstairs floor will not be as effective since moist, warm air will rise.

Experts also point out that a humidifier should not be placed against an outside wall since the temperature there is not typical of the temperature in the house as a whole. As a result, it could throw off the automatic humidistat.

Creative Writing Contest To Close December 10

Mrs. Ellen H. Eberly, Children's Librarian at the Warren Public Library, has expressed gratification at the response to her announcement that the local library is participating in the Henry Z. Walck, Inc. 1971-1972 Creative Writing Contest for third-grade pupils. Boys and girls throughout the area are displaying much interest in the contest and Mrs. Eberly has received many inquiries.

Students entering the contest will write an original story to accompany the pictures in the book, "The Christmas Kitten" by Ruth Carroll. Entries are to be judged on story content, style, grammar, spelling, and neatness.

Contest entries may be handed in to the Warren Public Library through Dec. 10, 1971. Winners are to be announced May 12, 1972. Official rules and lists of the prizes to be awarded are available at the library.

Third-grade boys and girls are invited to enter the creative writing contest. Copies of "The Christmas Kitten" are available on a one-week loan basis and one copy of the book is being retained in the library for use there.

Veteran's Day Noted

The Ladies Auxiliary to V.F.W. Post 631 paid tribute to Armistice Day at the meeting held Thursday, Nov. 11. With President Mrs. Willis Sullivan presiding, following the opening Prayer by Chaplain Mrs. James Saines, a silent prayer by all was offered in memory of the original Armistice Day. Then all sang The Star Spangled Banner, with Lucille Sullivan at the piano.

During the business agenda, President Sullivan reported on the Northwestern Counties Council meeting held in Oil City Nov. 7, and requested members to send trading stamps to Council Hospital Chairman to be used toward purchases for Erie Soldiers and Sailors Home. Among various Chairmen making reports, Minnie Townley, Kate Lingo and Mrs. William Weaver reported on current fund raising projects. The evening's special award went to Mrs. Ronald Merchant.

During the social hour following the meeting, lunch was served by Kate Lingo and Mrs. Richard English. The next meeting will be held on Tuesday, Nov. 23, because of Thanksgiving Day.

The Point System: Boon To Drivers Or Boondoggle?

Recent news releases from Harrisburg say that the practice of suspending operator's permits under the Point System must stop unless the driver in question is afforded the opportunity of a hearing before such suspension.

A three-judge federal court made the ruling on Oct. 26, but little publicity was given the fact until early this month. Department of Transportation officials in Harrisburg say that suspension notices are piling up in their offices.

In view of the sudden wave of publicity on suspension of driving privileges under the Point System (Act 527 The Pennsylvania Point System), it is perhaps time to review the Act and its effect on driving and drivers in the Commonwealth during its five-year life since July 24, 1966.

The Act provides a scale of 'points' that can be accumulated by a driver for various infractions of the state highway code. These points run from three for such relatively minor violations as exceeding a posted speed limit from 6 to 10 miles per hour, to six points for passing a stopped school bus. In all, the point penalty list includes 31 specific violations and includes the award of six points and suspension of the driving permit for periods ranging from 15 to 60 days, all for specified cases of exceeding posted speed limits. (See attached list.)

Basic Philosophy

The basic philosophy of the Act is one of "guiding and counseling the erring driver in an effort to make him a better driver," said William B. Blake, PennDOT's deputy secretary for safety administration.

Blake was referring both to the Point System and the Driver Improvement Schools, attendance at which is mandatory for all drivers who accumulate 6 points at one time. They have the alternative of not attending and having an additional five points added to their record which means suspension of their license.

Under the Oct. 26 court ruling, however, suspension may not now be made without a prior hearing. Motorists whose driving permits have already been suspended must live with their suspensions, for the court ruling does not apply to them.

Current law provides only limited judicial review of a suspension after someone's license is taken away.

Department officials say that about 8,800 Pennsylvania drivers currently are under suspension on the Point System. The Point System does not apply to suspensions for such infractions as displaying ficticious licenses, operating a vehicle without the owner's consent and loaning a license to another driver.

The state has been suspending about 650 drivers a week until the court order came through. Julius A. Trombetta, state director of traffic safety, said "We've stopped suspensions until this is resolved." He added, "it would take several months to get a hearing system set up." He also noted that setting up such a hearing system could cost the state nearly $1 million a year, based on the possible need for 100 examiners, their salaries and expenses.

Driver Improvement Schools

Of the 1,238,858 licensed drivers who were arrested and convicted in this state during the five years the Point System has been in effect, 306,710 reached the 6-point level for the first time and were required to attend a Driver Improvement School. Of this number, 265,489 successfully completed the course and were given a one point credit toward reducing their Point score, while 41,221 failed to attend and as a result were given a 60-day suspension of their operating privileges.

Area drivers who attend the Driver Improvement School attend evening classes at Warren Area High School where the school driver education teachers, Joe Massa and Jan Garrett conduct the courses that run for two hours a night for four nights, or a total of eight hours instruction.

Drivers who accumulate 11 points for the first time lose their operating privileges for 60 days; accumulation of 11 points for the second time, 90 days, but the third time, not less than 120 days or up to one year loss is a must.

The basic aim of the Driver Improvement School program is that of changing the attitude of the drivers and not the teaching of basic driving skills, said an official of the Department of Education that played a major role in establishing the school system.

Other than the one point removed from their record for attending a Driver Improvement School, operators may clear their records at the rate of two points for each year of violation-free driving following restoration of their license.

Any Pennsylvania driver who is convicted in another state for an offense similar to any on the schedule may be assigned points on the same basis as if the offense had occurred in the Commonwealth, the law says.

Clearing out-of-state points is done in the same manner as Commonwealth-accrued points.

With the five-year-old Point System operating at full effect, state authorities are satisfied that it is fulfilling its basic intent—that of educating drivers rather than senselessly penalizing them. On the other hand, said Trombetta, the flagrant violator who permits points to be added to his record, the law is very strict. "This not only serves to remove the motorist from the highway who fails to try to improve his record," said Trombetta, "but it also protects all users of the highways from the flagrant, irresponsible driver."

Suspensions May Remain

As for the final outcome of the court ruling barring suspensions without a hearing—only time can tell. But all motorists are advised to continue to drive with all due caution; for if you should accrue sufficient points to warrant a suspension, but feel the law cannot now take away your license, take another look. If the court ruling is overruled by a higher court, then it would seem that all accumulated suspensions in the Bureau of Traffic Safety's office would then immediately become effective.

A word to the wise . . .

YEARLY FIGURES SHOW

Over 4,000 Chinese Enter U.S. Illegally

WASHINGTON (AP) — As many as 4,200 aliens from Communist China sneak into the United States every year, according to secret Justice Department intelligence reports which say some of the aliens are on espionage missions, and others are involved in narcotics traffic.

Only one in 10 of these illegal aliens is caught and deported, the report say. Among those identified by the government, many have been traced to the Hong Kong Seamans Union, an organization said by the FBI to be engaged in espionage. Other Chinese aliens taken into custody have been carrying narcotics shipments destined for U.S. contacts.

According to a source in the Immigration and Naturalization Service, the Justice Department section responsible for capturing illegal aliens, the mainland Chinese have been coming for about five years, entering this country by jumping ship in U.S. ports or by way of smuggling operations in the United States and Canada.

Just last week, according to the confidential reports, INS smashed a ring engaged in smuggling Chinese sailors from Vancouver, British Columbia, into the United States at Bellingham and Blaine, Wash., at $1,000 a head.

The operation was broken up after the U.S. Border Patrol caught one group of the aliens as they crossed the border on foot a mile east of Blaine. A second group made it to the New York metropolitan area. Three of them were arrested last Wednesday in Newark, N.J., and told authorities they made their first contact with the smugglers in Hong Kong.

According to INS sources, as many as 2,500 mainland Chinese are smuggled into the United States each year. Another 1,700 jump foreign-flag vessels in U.S. ports. The intelligence reports said 5,640 entered that way between 1965 and 1970.

Chinese seamen among the flood of illegal aliens have been traced by the FBI to the Hong Kong Seamans Union.

An FBI intelligence report described the union this way: "HKSU has voiced vehement opposition to United States military action in Vietnam and dissuades seamen from serving aboard ships carrying strategic materials to Vietnam. Conversely, the HKSU encourages seamen to sail on ships bound for North Vietnam. KSU has approved a policy of placing Communist seamen on Western ships for the purpose of sabotage or capture in the event of future hostilities.

"Chinese seamen recruited in Hong Kong serve on ships calling at major world ports, thus providing an opportunity for courier service and intelligence collection."

The FBI report said that Chinese shipjumpers in the United States had arrived in vessels flying Liberian, Norwegian, British, Panamanian, Dutch, Israeli, Swedish and Danish flags.

Smugglers bringing aliens into the country charge from $100 to $1,000 per person, authorities say.

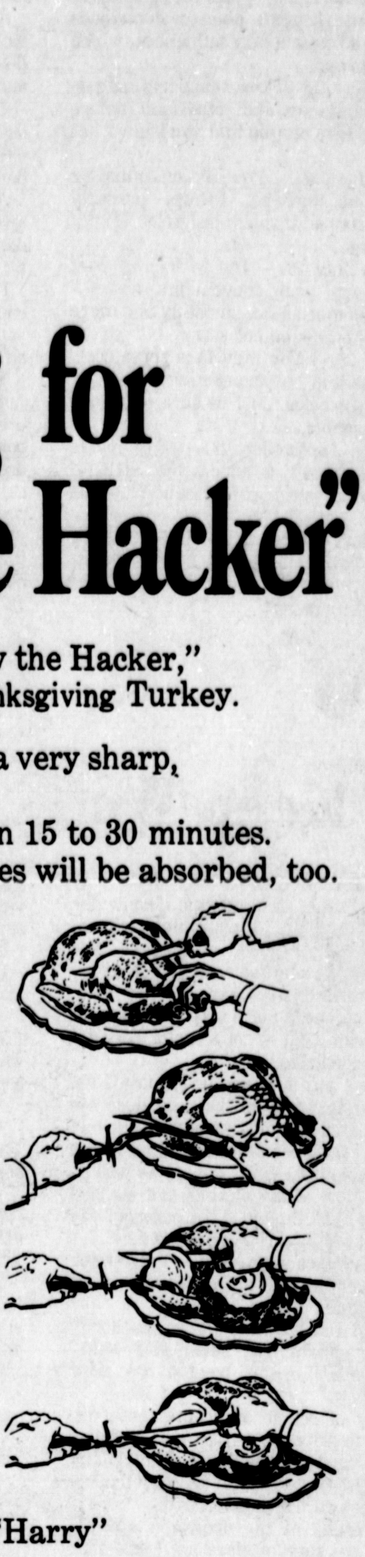
something for "Harry the Hacker"

Lots of us are known as, "Harry the Hacker," because of what we do to a Thanksgiving Turkey.

The secret to classic carving is a very sharp, thin-bladed knife.
Allow bird to sit in roasting pan 15 to 30 minutes.
It will slice cleaner and the juices will be absorbed, too.
Follow these simple directions:



1. Cut off leg by drawing knife deeply between leg and body through hip joint. Press leg away from body and remove.
2. Before slicing breast, make a deep horizontal cut to bone in breast, just above the wing.
3. Beginning about halfway up breast, slice downward with straight even strokes until slices fall free at cut.
4. Cut off wing through shoulder joint. Cut off wing tip. When one side is clean, turn platter and carve other side.

One final thing you can do for "Harry" . . . buy your turkey at A&P.

Our Super-Right Turkeys are all Grade "A" birds.
Harry will carve such beautiful slices you'll want to rechristen him, "Sam the Surgeon."

Opening lead: King of ♠ North and South immersed themselves in a heated dispute regarding the proper play of the club suit by South to bring home his four heart contract without casualty. What was overlooked by both participants was that the declarer need not have subjected himself to any guess on the deal—since a foolproof alternative was available.

West opened the king of spades and was permitted to hold the first trick. South won the continuation with the ace and proceeded to draw two rounds of trumps by leading over to dummy's queen and back to the ace.

A small diamond was led and West, fearing that declarer might be trying to sneak thru a singleton, rose with the ace. He continued with the jack and North played the king. Had West followed with a small card on the first diamond, it would have left his partner in position to put up the queen on the next round and cash out his high spade to complete the defensive book and assure South's eventual defeat.

A third round of diamonds was ruffed in the closed hand and a club was led. West followed with the three. The ten was played from dummy and East won with the jack and cashed the setting, trick in spades.

North was highly critical of his partner for not putting up the ace of clubs and then returning the ten. If the ten is permitted to ride, it will dislodge West's king and establish South's queen for a spade discard from dummy.

South countered by stating that he was playing the opening bidder for both the king and jack of clubs. Regardless of the merits of the discussion, declarer had a line of play at his disposal that was foolproof as the cards were actually distributed, once West failed to duck the first diamond lead.

After the third round of diamonds is ruffed and both opponents follow suit, it is suggested that South cross over to the ten of hearts to lead a fourth diamond. When East shows out, declarer discards his remaining spade, instead of ruffing. West is in with the jack of diamonds and since he has only clubs left—the forced lead away from the king assures South of scoring two tricks in that suit. In all he loses one spade and two diamonds.

If it develops that East is the player with the fourth diamond, South can still ruff in and try out the clubs in an attempt to guess the layout in that suit.

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1971

ARIES (March 21 to April 20)— Let some matters "rest" while you reorganize thoughts, plans, new methods of approach. A day of mixed planetary influences, which calls for astuteness, tolerance.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)— Present aspects suggest keen observance of conditions and situations before launching new projects. Make certain that you know what you are about.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)— Your actions must be predicated on organized thinking. Efforts properly directed can be the forerunner of much progress. Do not overtax yourself, however.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)— The lessons of past experience should govern your movements now. A cohesive program will run much more smoothly and more effectively than a spur-of-the-moment setup.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23)— You may face some complexities. Maintain poise and be persevering, however, and you can hurdle all obstacles. Just be sure that your ultimate goals are reasonable ones.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23)—Many fringe benefits indicated for those ready to expend that little bit of extra effort which so often takes achievement out of the mediocre class.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23)— Mild planetary influences. Do not be capricious in likes or dislikes, whether personal or business. It leads to poor performance, discontent, uncertainty.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22)— With self-confidence and optimism, you should go far now. You can easily hurdle obstacles others find difficult, thus can win laurels more swiftly.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21)— Effective action will win approval of associates. Intelligent discussion will help crystalize next moves. Rational analysis of all issues important.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)— Be alert now. Others may be trying to outmaneuver you. Keep eyes, ears attuned so that you don't miss a trick. New benefits in the offing.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)— Produce at a level consistent with the needs of the day. Idle hands do not attain. You, by nature, are a DOER, so do not yield to a current tendency to "let things go."

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)— Don't scatter energies now. If you try to do too many things at one time, you will do none well. Give special attention to economic and domestic matters.

YOU BORN TODAY are surely among the do-ers, not just the dreamers. But you have your moments for dreaming, too. However, it is in the nature of the Scorpio-born to achieve, keep reaching for new heights, so your dreams often materialize in unexpected fashion, and you can catch others off guard with bright ideas and unusual plans. Both music and the theater are excellent outlets for your emotions and talents, but you could also succeed in the law, medicine or science, depending upon your inclinations and education, of course. Birthdate of: Rock Hudson, film star.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

SENILE CATARACTS

Cataract is a common cause of blindness, despite the fact that it is curable. In England, for example, one third of the blind lost their sight because of neglect. The majority were elderly people who took the advice of untrained practitioners or pessimistic friends. They were encouraged to put off the operation or refused through fear, ignorance or fatalism. Cost is not a factor because England has socialized medicine.

This is a pity, yet these attitudes are understandable. The operation is only the first step of the procedure. As soon as the lens is removed the individual has entirely different vision in each eye. He is definitely blind in the operated orbit and without glasses may not see as well as he did before surgery. Most of the victims are worried about this but are apt to think that once the cataract has been removed their sight will again be as good as new.

Shortly after surgery glasses are ordered. These thick "pebble" lenses are uncomfortable. At first, objects seem magnified and straight lines curved.

The vision is distorted and "squirmy." One authority likened it to "writhing snakes that never stay still." Meanwhile, when the other eye is treated the story repeats itself.

In time, the majority of people overcome these difficulties. They are able to drive a car, play golf, and live as they did before the opacities clouded the sight. Many get contact lenses that restore peripheral vision and allow them to have two eyes that work in unison.

Now and then the results of the operation are unfavorable because the eye surgeon does not know that behind the cataract is a degenerated retina that will prevent good vision regardless of surgery. Other complications may occur but the chances of a good result are excellent. We mention this because oldsters should not view the operation with fear and trepidation. It is a sight-saving procedure.

TOMORROW: Shoulder Bursitis.

BLOOD CLOTTING TESTS

T.S.T. writes: Why must frequent blood tests be done when a person takes an anticoagulant after he has had a heart attack?

REPLY

Anticoagulant drugs prevent the blood from clotting. These tests ascertain whether too much of the drug has been taken so that the individual is in danger of bleeding.

NUMB, HEAVY AND SWOLLEN

D.B.W. writes: Could a weight gain of 20 pounds cause the ankles and feet to swell and feel numb and heavy?

REPLY

Yes, provided the gain in weight stems from fluid that has settled in the ankles and feet. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on edema of the legs and feet.

IT STARTS EARLY

A reader writes: Do autopsies show that most people have cholesterol deposits on the arteries?

REPLY

Yes, even babies.

TENDER SOLES

T.R.D. writes: Is there any way to toughen tender soles?

REPLY

The soles are toughened by use in much the same way as the palms get thicker and callused by working with the hands. Soaking the feet in brine may help.

According to the court calendar the next session of sentencing court is Dec. 17. If the presiding judge follows his usual procedure, the minimum first offense sentence is costs, $150 fine and 10 days in the county jail for driving under the influence. This could mean that the drinking driver apprehended between now and then would celebrate Christmas behind bars—and not the kind of bars that serve alcoholic beverages.

There are murmurs in the court house corridors that a top county official who lost his bid for nomination and re-election in the May primaries, may be considering tossing his hat in the ring (again) to seek the State Representative post now held by William W. Allen.

From Kennedy Space Center in Florida, comes word that a former Warrenite, Frederic Gorenflo, branch supervisor, Federal Electric Corp., was one of two winners in the "Zero In" federal safety poster campaign. Entries came from all over the U.S.A. and the two winners will receive their original entry, drawn and signed by Cartoonist Johnny Hart. The entries will then be sent to the Dept. of Labor for use in the federal government safety campaign.

Internal Revenue Now Checks Freeze Claims

PITTSBURGH — Starting Monday, November 15, Internal Revenue Service offices have assumed new responsibilities formerly assigned to the Office of Emergency Preparedness under the President's Economic Stabilization Program, Mr. H. Alan Long, IRS District Director for Western Pennsylvania, said today.

Within guidelines issued and to be issued by the Cost of Living Council, the Price Commission and the Pay Board, the IRS will act on requests for interpretations and on appeals of adverse determinations. In addition, the IRS will continue to provide information to the public, investigate complaints and monitor compliance with stabilization guidelines.

The IRS will handle enforcement activities in connection with the largest numerical segment of the economy—those businesses not required to report their increases to the Pay Board or the Price Commission, Mr. Long said. The IRS also will conduct fact-finding investigations for the Board and Commission.

IRS offices in Western Pennsylvania are open Monday through Friday to answer inquiries and receive complaints from the public on stabilization matters.

OEO Board To Meet

The board of directors for Warren-Forest Counties Economic Opportunity Council will meet at 8 p.m. Thursday in the North Room of First United Methodist Church, corner of Second and Market sts.

New Members

Jay Lindell of Russell, with Julie Ann Loomis and Kenneth Michael Loomis, Sugar Grove, have joined the junior membership ranks of Holstein-Friesian Association of America. Over 13,700 youngsters are now actively enrolled in the breed organization's program.

Any young person, under 21 years of age, who is or has been a member of a 4-H Club for Future Farmers of America chapter is eligible for junior membership, provided they own in their own name, at least one registered Holstein.

Junior members of the national association are entitled to all privileges of adult members except voting. They may register and transfer their animals at member rates and receive regular reports of breed and organization progress.

Local Members Report On Farm Convention

Nine members of the Warren County Farmers Association attended all or part of the 21st annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Farmers Association at Camp Hill. The convention completed its activities Nov. 10.

The county association has more than 174 family members and is affiliated with the state association, a general farm organization of more than 14,000 families in the Keystone State representing 47 county units. It is also affiliated with the American Farm Bureau Federation.

At the convention members adopted the 1972 policies and elected officers. Policies as adopted will govern PFA in seeking legislation in 1972. Leslie Dodd, RD 2, Corry (Columbus) was re-elected a state director.

The local county unit won several awards, including a blue ribbon for its county scrapbook; a blue ribbon on the county newsletter; a silver tray to Howard VanTassel, membership chairman, for achieving the 1971 membership goal and a "King Pin" award to Charles VanTassel for an outstanding job of signing up new members.

Baseball caps and baseballs were presented to each county membership chairman to symbolize the new "ballgame" of membership for 1972. The local goal was set at 185 and the cap and ball were accepted from Philadelphia Phillies pitcher Rick Wise by Charles VanTassel.

Several local people participated in the Nov. 7-10 affair, including Leslie Dodd, who presided at the membership luncheon; Charles VanTassel, who gave the invocation at one session; and Mrs. Alfred Akins who reviewed the County Women's Committee activities for 1971. Voting delegates Steve Bosko and Charles VanTassel took an active part in discussing and adopting new policies.

Because the General Assembly was in session Tuesday evening, Rep. William W. Allen was unable to attend the banquet as planned. He did, however, meet with the county delegates later.

Those who attended the convention were Mr. and Mrs. Charles VanTassel, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Dodd and Steve Bosko. They were joined Tuesday by Ray Sanders, Charles Dodd, Mrs. Akins and Mrs. F.E. Wilcox.
